British Worry
Wall Street Worry
He Owns Competition
To Kill, or Not to Kill

—By Arthur Brisbane—

BRITAIN has a new worry in India—fear of treachery among native troops.

Only a few British in India, less than the population of a small American city, among 300,000,000 Hindus.

To what extent native troops and police can be relied on, in view of intense national feeling, is a serious question.

The British are shifting native troops, official reports referring to "unsatisfactory conduct," which means that natives would not obey orders to shoot their own people.

Another day of worry in Wall Street yesterday, stocks off two to seven points, worst day since the whirlwind last fall.

The gambling geese had begun to come back, speculating on hopes instead of facts.

The time for that has not come.

Cost of travel by air and rail between New York and the Southwest is reduced to less than regular railroad and Pullman car travel.

Flying from New York to Dallas, Tex., or Oklahoma City, you save $6.24 in cash, 18 hours in time.

And these cuts are made by the Pennsylvania Railroad itself.

Wise General Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania, decides that if he must have air competition, he will own the competition.

Another energetic effort is made to abolish capital punishment. Such efforts come by fits and starts. The recent burning alive of convicts in the Ohio penitentiary convinces people that convicts should not be burned alive when they haven't been sentenced to death.

Will Durant writes against capital punishment earnestly.

At the beginning of the last century when the question was agitated, it was called an insult to the judges of England. They knew what was good for criminals.

There is more involved in the question than criminals or their welfare, and that is the question of heredity.

For at least 100,000 years murder has been punished with death. And probably the human race has been improved by destroying murderers as fast as they were caught.

If capital punishment now frightened criminals or helped to rid the human race of the killer-type, it would be a good thing. But it probably does neither.

Laws that inflict capital punishment, which is simply killing officially, are in themselves murderous, setting a bad and disgraceful example.

A report on two jails in New York says prisoners "are caged like animals." Men unable to furnish bail, innocent or guilty, are sent to these prisons. It makes a difference even in our perfect democracy if you happen not to have any money.

It is a mistake to burn prisoners alive in unsafe prisons, a mistake to jail them like "caged animals."

Quite apart from human decency, it doesn't pay. Men thus caged are apt to cause trouble when they leave the cage.

Delegates to the naval conference are back from London "confident that real results have been achieved." A majority of citizens are satisfied to know that no great harm has been done.

Delegates have not brought back any five-power agreement, under which this country would be obliged to send over billions of money to be spent, and men to be shot, in case Europe decided to start another war.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, who knows the people of this country, makes this sound statement:

"The American people will never participate directly in Europe's troubles by taking up arms."

Those responsible for the American government, bearing that in mind, should not promise things that the people would not allow them to perform.

Fred Williams, able flier, at the Long Island Curtiss airport,

FLAYS EX-GOV. BATES

The Senate Is the Treaty Making Power of the United States

A great many people seem to think that the United States Senate is in a measure intruding into the President's business when it considers the advantages and disadvantages of any treaty, and decides whether or not it will approve it.

But the Senate has as high a constitutional right to veto any act of the Chief Executive in the matter of foreign relations as the Executive has to veto the act of the Senate in other matters.

In fact, the Senate has a higher constitutional right, because when the President vetoes a bill which Congress has passed, the Congress has the right to pass the bill over the President's veto by two-thirds majority.

But the President has no constitutional right whatever to defy or to modify the Senate's authority in regard to the making of treaties.

The original constitutional convention, after due deliberation, gave this power of veto of the treaty-making activities of the President to the Senate WITHOUT ANY QUALIFICATION OR ANY LIMITATION.

The Senate consists of the representatives of the several states which go to make up the Union.

Those states are sovereign.

They came into the Union on condition that they retain certain rights, and those rights were expressed in the Constitution which the constitutional convention drew up and the several sovereign states ratified.

Without the consent of the several sovereign states there would have been no UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

Hence the sacredness of the rights guaranteed to the representatives of the states by the Constitution of the United States.

And chief among those rights is the right to decide whether a treaty negotiated by the President SHALL OR SHALL NOT be accepted by the representatives of the sovereign states in the Senate.

The senators, therefore, in passing upon treaties, are exercising the right reserved by the sovereign states which constitute the Union; and their right EXCEEDS the right and power of the President.

The people of the states realized that usually the greatest menace to republican government, and the greatest danger to the peace and safety of the nation arise from the ambition and arrogance of the Chief Executive.

Therefore, the sovereign states purposely and specifically withheld from the President the right to involve the states and the people of the states in foreign entanglements upon his own whim and caprice, and made their own representatives in the Senate the high court of final decision in the matter of foreign treaties.

The senators, consequently, as the representatives of the sovereign states, have the highest constitutional right to override and overrule any action of the EXECUTIVE of his AGENTS in the making of treaties.

These important rights involve important OBLIGATIONS.

It is not merely the RIGHT of the Senate to consider a treaty with the utmost care, and with full knowledge of ALL THE FACTS.

It is their absolute DUTY to their states and to the United States to do so.

It is their absolute duty to exercise THEIR OWN JUDGMENT and not be influenced by the attitude of the Executive, whose acts they have the constitutional right to overrule.

It is the duty of the senators to realize that they represent sovereign states.

It is the duty of the senators to realize that the several states joined in the United States and adopted the Constitution of the United States only with the understanding that this important treaty-making right should be reserved to the states through their representatives in the Senate.

The senators would betray their people, betray their states, and be false to the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, if they did not fully, fearlessly, and conscientiously exercise the rights which the Constitution gives them.

The President of the United States has the right to negotiate a treaty; but his authority ENDS THERE.

The authority to ADOPT the treaty lies with the Senate; and it is to be hoped that the Senate is worthy of the high powers reposed in it by the Constitution, worthy of the confidence reposed in it by the states and the people of the states; equal to its powers and its position, and able to exercise its rights conscientiously and independently, AS THE FOUNDERS OF THE REPUBLIC INTENDED THAT IT SHOULD.

Mr. Stimson is no more than an ERRAND BOY constitutionally. He is bringing back his report to the treaty-making power, which is the Senate of the United States.

The President is purely a NEGOTIATOR. He is submitting his negotiations to the treaty-making power, which is the Senate of the United States.

The right to accept or reject or to modify the treaty lies ENTIRELY in the jurisdiction of the Senate, without any power on the part of the President to veto or even to review their action.

The SENATE must decide the question of the proposed London naval treaty and the people will hold the SENATE responsible for the decision.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

HAD NO IDEA OF HIS DUTY DECLARES DODGE

Pleads for Disbarment on the Ground That He Had No Right to Take Money

The charge that former Governor John L. Bates for 20 years has had no conception of duty to his clients and has not now, was made today in the disbarment proceedings against him in Supreme Court.

"It is amazing," said Atty. Robert G. Dodge in his final argument on the petition, "that Governor Bates, in view of the public offices he has filled and public services he has rendered, has had for the past 20 years no conception of his duty to clients and has not today."

When Atty. Dodge finished his argument, Judge Sanderson took the case under advisement.

DENIES ANIMOSITY

William G. Thompson, chairman of the grievance committee of the Bar Association, called by Atty. Dodge in rebuttal, denied he was inspired by animosity and prejudice and said Bates was given more consideration than any other man.

Thompson was granted permission to make a statement, in which he said:

"I personally come to this courthouse to see the chief justice in an attempt to avoid the disgrace which threatened Mr. Bates, but I was unsuccessful."

Atty. Dodge, after referring to Bates' lack of conception to duty, said:

"The Hascall case indicates a gross breach of professional duty. When he took $5000 from her a month after the death of her husband with the lure of a one per cent per month interest did he tell her of his own notes that were overdue and unpaid to others? He knew how any lawyer would have advised her if he knew the financial condition of Bates. It is perfectly obvious that this money was a loan and it was highly unprofessional for him to have permitted her to give it to him in his financial embarrassment."

TOOK ADVANTAGE OF WOMAN

Atty. Dodge then denied allegations of prejudice introduced by Bates.

"All his dealings have been with unprotected women. They knew he was governor of the Commonwealth, they knew of his prominent

OHIO STATE PRISON ARMED CAMP; 1000 TROOPS IN CONTROL

SHOOTING OF CONVICTS PROBED

Seven Men Condemned to Death Rounded Up and Removed to City Jail

Columbus, O., April 30.—Slight flare-ups of insubordination and the slugging of two prisoners by fellow convicts today marked the "military rule" of Ohio State penitentiary.

Armed national guardsmen occupying the prison to enforce discipline promptly made the rebels "toe the mark."

Shouts of derision greeted prison guards each time they entered the "white city" cell block to escort the "hard boiled" convict contingent to breakfast and lunch.

The prompt appearance of the soldiers, wearing wartime steel hats and carrying rifles, quashed the demonstration.

Jimmie Gordon, alias Edgar Barr, of Wood county and Charles Hanovich of Cleveland, drew the wrath of their fellow convicts and were badly beaten with pieces of pipe. Gordon was regarded as a "traitor."

Both were removed from the idle house to the penitentiary hospital. The Rev. Albert O'Brien, Catholic Chaplain, said Hanovich was in serious condition.

Both are comparatively new prisoners, having entered the penitentiary only a few weeks ago. Gordon is serving 20 to 25 years for robbery and Hanovich, a youth of 19, is serving life for murdering a Cleveland policeman.

A barbed wire stockade within the prison walls where mutinous convicts will be confined while their damaged cell blocks are being repaired, was completed today.

The transfer of about 300 prisoners to this enclosure will be made before night.

"ANYTHING MAY HAPPEN"

The convicts were in an ugly mood. They dared not take any liberties with the bayonet-armed guards, however. From the parapet and walls of the prison machine guns were trained upon them. The interior of the bastile swarmed with soldiers and naval militiamen in command of Col. Robert Haubrich.

The general belief was that anything might happen because of resentment over shooting of two convicts yesterday.

Prison officials were investigating a guard's statement that the first shot was fired by a convict. Warden Preston E. Thomas said the guard, whose name was withheld, told him that no shooting occurred until a bullet came from the direction of the cell blocks.

Warden Thomas said he was pleased that the troops had taken over control of the prison, as far as enforcing discipline was concerned.

Milling about with other prisoners in "white city" yesterday were four men under death sentence released by the revolters. All were rounded up, however, and today were in city jail. Three others who declined to leave death row also were taken to the jail.

Atty.-Gen. Gilbert Bettman's report on the investigation of the fire last week in which 322 convicts lost their lives was in the hands of State Welfare Director Hal H. Griswold today. The report is not expected to be made public until its receipt by the governor.

Fire Panic Quelled in Chicago's Old City Jail

Chicago, April 30—Fire broke out early today in the House of Correction, which has a prison population of about 2000.

The blaze was extinguished quickly, but prisoners were excited to high pitch and several detective squads were sent there to guard against disorder.

Members of the City Council were appalled today to learn that conditions at the House of Correction, built nearly 60 years ago, are worse in many respects than those at the Ohio State Penitentiary, where 322 convicts met their death as the result of the Easter Monday fire.

Alderman Thomas F. Byrne announced that he would introduce a resolution at today's council meeting calling for a thorough investigation of the Bridewell, as the municipal prison is called, and of all other city buildings.

Other aldermen agreed that if conditions are as represented by Chief Patrick J. Egan of the fire prevention bureau, the city authorities would be inviting another horror like that at Columbus if they did not act promptly.

Appeals to Hoover for Peace at Ohio Prison

Washington, April 30 (INS)—Declaring "force never settled any question," E. E. Dudding, president of the Prisoners Relief Society, today wrote Lawrence Richey, a White House secretary, to ask President Hoover to use his influence with Governor Cooper toward a peaceful settlement of the discontent among prisoners at the Ohio State penitentiary.

Dudding said reports received by his society indicate the "situation is most critical" and that he fears relatives and friends of the prisoners may attempt to aid a prison delivery.

He was told public sentiment in Ohio is greatly inflamed against the poor management of the whole of it, he said.

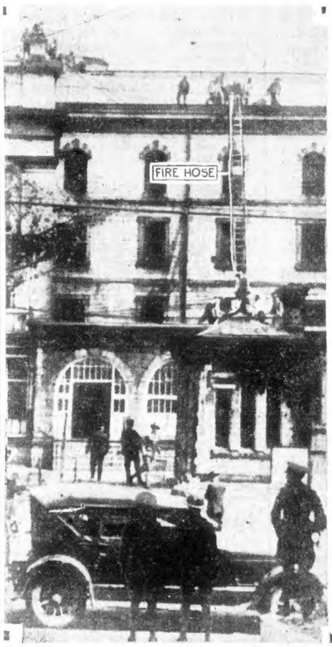
Childs at 63 Opens First Restaurant of New Chain

New York, April 30 (AP)—William Childs is back in the restaurant business, beginning over again at 63.

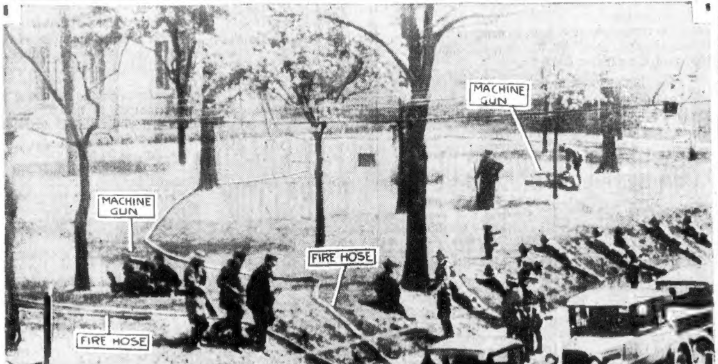
The man who put his family name on the windows of 118 eating places, only to lose control of them a year ago, opened the first of a new chain of restaurants on Broadway last night.

The new restaurants are to have no flapjacking maidens in the front windows, nor any of the white tile which William Childs introduced into American eateries. Each will be done in the manner of "some well known old world center." The first one is in Moorish arabesque.

Convicts Held at Bay



Revolting convicts hurled broken glass and other debris on the heads of firemen as they attempted to drag a hose to the roof of one of the buildings in the Ohio State penitentiary



A no-man's-land was established on the lawns of the penitentiary, with machine gun nests, manned by troopers, holding the convicts at bay. Fire hoses were also used to repulse the rioters. An excellent view of the troops in action during the fierce struggle at the prison is given here. Despite the shooting yesterday, the institution is still in revolt. (I. N. R.)

Catholics Celebrate Feast Day of Saint

Rome, April 30 (AP)—The feast of St. Catherine of Siena, one of the most forceful women of the Middle Ages, credited with having persuaded a Pope to return from the "Babylonian captivity" in Avignon, was celebrated today in the chruches dedicated to her.

Likewise, it was to be commemorated generally throughout the world by the Dominican order, of which St. Catherine was a nun. Siena's own remembrance of its patron does not come until next Sunday.

DRUG PEDLAR GETS 3 YEARS AT ATLANTA

Sentenced After Offering a Faked Health Certificate to Court; Accuses Lawyer

Nicola Cervone, 23, confessed drug pedlar, who, on Monday, nearly hoaxed the federal court into believing he was tubercular and so entitled to leniency, was sentenced today to three years in the penitentiary at Atlanta.

It was proved in court Monday, after Cervone had been sentenced to six months in the House of Correction at Greenfield, that the doctor's certificate declaring him tubercular had been issued to his brother. Sentence was revoked pending an investigation.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Elihu D. Stone told Judge James A. Lowell that he considered Cervone's attempt to perpetrate a fraud on the court far more serious than the sale of an ounce of morphine and an ounce of cocaine, which he admitted.

Judge Morton asked if the prisoner, an alleged member of the "Little Brooklyn" gang of drug pedlars, had anything to say before sentence and Cervone made the startling charge that a Boston attorney had procured the affidavit after taking $1200 from him on the promise he would not be sent to prison. He said the lawyer returned $600 after he was sentenced to Greenfield.

"You knew what you were doing; you were trying to deceive this court," said Judge Lowell. "That is a serious offense and I sentence you to three years at Atlanta."

OFFICERS DENY NEGLIGENCE IN BURNED SHIP

Could Not Stop Freighter, So Lifeboats Upset When They Hit Water

New Haven, Conn., April 30 (AP)—The story of the burning of the freighter Thames in Long Island Sound last week with a loss of sixteen lives was told to the United States Steamboat Inspection Board here today.

Two minutes after fire was discovered in the boiler room Captain Robert Sherman of Stratford testified the crew of 26 men went overboard in two life boats, both of which capsized as they struck the water.

The engineer being unable to reach the throttle in the engine room, the freighter was in motion when the life boats hit the water. And this, it was testified, was the reason they turned over.

The chief engineer, his assistant and the second mate told the board that everything humanly possible was done.

In their opinion there was no negligence.

The cause of the blaze they did not know, but according to Captain Sherman, the cargo consisted of highly inflammable material, motor oil and excelsior and twenty tons of sugar.

In his closing argument Atty. Bates reiterated his statements that the moneys given him by the Misses Butler and Mrs. Hascall were eventually understood by them to be loans to him.

"I admit I might have been careless in not having apprised them of the changed situation under which their money was to be invested," he said, "but that carelessness was not of sufficient gravity to involve me in these proceedings. These parties have not suffered. They have been paid in full."

HYDE DEFENDS FARM BOARD

Washington, April 30 (AP)—Secretary Hyde made a fiery extemporaneous defence of the agricultural marketing act and the federal farm board today before the Chamber of Commerce.

Hyde, who was not listed as a speaker, arose after attacks upon the board.

He said much of the opposition to the board's activities in behalf of the farmer was due to "covetousness" and the "fat head self-satisfied desire to be content with things as they are."

Hyde said the marketing act had been misinterpreted and the "farm board does not expect to peg prices, but does propose to try to influence production."

Gould to Extend Realty Holdings Along Riviera

Frank Jay Gould

Nice, France, April 30 (AP)—Reliable reports are to the effect that Frank Jay Gould, owner of the Palais de la Mediterranee in Nice, is about to invest $2,000,000 more in Riviera real estate. This time his venture will be at Beuil, the mountain center for winter sports, 50 miles from Nice. Tentative plans call for the construction of a large hotel, but part of the investment will go toward improving the roads leading to the village.

Mr. Gould already is one of the heaviest investors in Riviera property. His Nice casino cost more than $5,000,000, and he also owns the hotel and country club at Cannes, besides being the largest individual stockholder in the prosperous Juan les Pins Casino.

Girl Flier Lands Safely on Roof; Saves Passenger

Adrienne Bolland

Le Bourget, France, April 30 (AP)—Adrienne Bolland, French girl who flew over the Chilean Andes in 1923, today landed her plane on the roof of a big shed when telegraph wires tossed it out of its course as she made a forced landing.

Her motor failed during the air baptism of a woman passenger, and she was unable to clear the wires. She steadied the plane sufficiently to set it down on the roof, and in order to avoid rolling off maneuvered to turn the machine on its nose.

Meanwhile she threw her arm around the frightened woman beside her to prevent her falling or jumping out. The plane was wrecked, but the pilot and passenger, uninjured, descended on a ladder.

The same reports say that Carol has definitely severed all connections with Mme. Lupescu. His affair with the Frenchwoman was one of the factors which caused his fall from grace and subsequent exile.

CONFESSION IN HUB SLAYING A SURPRISE

Woman Held in Newark Says She Gave Weapon to Husband and He Vanished

Boston police were surprised today to receive word from Newark, N. J., that Violette Brevard, held in that city, had confessed to the murder of Harry Houston in Dartmouth st., South End, two years ago.

About a month ago James Lee, under arrest in Kankakee, Ill., confessed to the same crime, and local police hold an indictment warrant charging the woman's husband, David Brevard, with second degree murder in connection with it.

Chief of Police Joseph Siebold of Newark notified Boston police he was sending by airmail the confession of the Brevard woman, held in that city on a disorderly conduct charge.

He said she claimed to have shot Houston when he slandered her and that she gave the weapon to her husband, who has been missing ever since.

According to Chief Inspector Ainsley C. Armstrong, the shooting of Houston occurred over a loan of $50, and the police claim David Brevard fired the fatal shot.

Sergt. James Sheehan, who went to Kankakee to hear Lee's story, said he believed the man had invented the story.

FIRE DISPERSES 50 FAMILIES

Lowell, April 30—Fifty families fled or were carried to safety and several persons were injured when a general alarm fire of suspicious origin swept through the thickly populated tenement district in Hall and Aitken sts. early today.

Starting in a woodyard off Hall st., the blaze spread to a garage, five large tenement blocks and several small shacks, two of the latter being destroyed.

One woman fainted and was carried from her home by Patrolman Michael Hickey. Frank L. Prescott of Vernon st. was injured when his automobile was in collision with fire apparatus. John Foley of Dracut fractured a wrist beating on doors in one of the burning buildings to warn occupants. A woman was burned about the hand in saving household effects, and a cat was rescued by a man.

The damage is estimated at about $50,000.

Trapped on the top of a three-story rooming house at 48 Winchester st., Brookline, Mrs. Wally Rachenberg, 40, was carried over ladders by Captain George Murray of the Brookline fire department in a thrilling rescue during a fire which broke out early today. Sixteen persons were driven to the street.

Damage to the building is estimated by Chief Selden A. Allen of the Brookline fire department at $2000.

Patrolman Harry Tiernan of the Brookline police department saw smoke coming out of the rear of the house as he was passing by and broke into the house and aroused the occupants.

Six Children Saved in Revere Blaze

Heroic work on the part of Fire Commissioner Harry Harding of the Revere fire department who rescued a five-months-old child and Police Sergeant John P. Starkey who with members of the Revere flying squadron saved four children featured an early morning blaze which badly damaged three dwelling houses in Marshall st., in North Revere.

Damage to the three houses will total $11,000.

The fire started at 46 Marshall st., and spread to the homes at 48 and 50 Marshall st.

Special Officer Theodore Snow rescued seven-year-old William Cabor, who was asleep in the second floor at 46 Marshall st.

The dangerous effort is doubtless useful in testing strength of planes. Otherwise it doesn't matter whether a flier loops 2000 or 2,000,000.

BAY STATE WOODS ARE CLOSED BY PROCLAMATION OF GOV. ALLEN

FOREST FIRE MENACE IS ACUTE

Thousands of Fishermen Kept Off Streams While Ban Is On

Because of the drought and forest fire menace, Gov. Allen today issued a proclamation closing the woods of the state at sunset this afternoon.

Owners and tenants of woodlands, their agents or persons holding written permission from them are the only exceptions.

The proclamation affects thousands of trout fishermen. Commissioner of Conservation William A. L. Bazeley said no fishing will be allowed on streams in wooded sections while the ban is on. Lakes or ponds accessible by public road may be fished from boats.

Only a sustained heavy rain will relieve the present serious situation in the woods it was indicated in reports reaching Governor Allen from all sections of the state this morning.

Many brush and timber fires were reported in Massachusetts today and the condition is general throughout New England.

Commissioner Bazeley pointed out that there has been a reduction in the rainfall for the past six months.

"There was a great shortage of water at the beginning of the year and for the four months of 1930," he said.

"For 1929 the total number of fires in the state was 1198, while so far this year the number has been 1459. We are having an average of about 75 fires a day."

3000 Acres Laid Waste in Rhode Island

Providence, April 30 (AP)—An emergency appeal to the people of Rhode Island was issued today by the State Department of Agriculture, asking that extreme precautions by taken to avoid setting forest or brush fires. More than 3000 acres of wood and brush land in several sections of the State were laid bare yesterday afternoon and last night by stubborn blazes in North Smithfield, West Greenwich, Cranston, Johnston, Smithfield and Scituate.

Report Shortage of Rainfall 16 Inches

Lowell, April 30 (AP)—A rainfall shortage of 16 inches below normal for the year ending today was reported by the Locks & Canal Corporation, official keepers of local precipitation records.

City officials fear that unless there is considerable rainfall this spring the serious conditions which have prevailed in nearby towns may be felt here.

Orange, April 30 (AP)—Damage estimated at $25,000 was caused by fire which swept the old Masonic Block here today.

Tenants occupying apartments on the second and third floors were forced to flee.

Milwaukee, April 30 (AP)—More than 250 men today fought fires burning over approximately 20,000 acres of Wisconsin's forests. A heavy smoke hung over the entire Chequamegon bay region as fighters backfired in attempts to save threatened farm dwellings.

Near Heerbster, 125 men worked to extinguish a blaze spreading northward toward Lake Superior. Approximately 4000 acres have already been burned.

WARNER HITS POLICE HEADS

probably will be so engaged up to the last minute."

The attorney-general's remaining task was putting the finishing touches on his findings, which are expected to be set forth in a 20-page document and which are said to denounce Garrett's activities while he was a police liquor raider, the circumstance of his pensioning and actions of Wilson, Patterson, Sergt. Timmons, Special Officer Arthur Tiernan and others whose names were brought into the hearing.

WILL LEAVE NO DOUBT

While the report will contain no direct recommendations, it is said to be couched in such language that the legislature which ordered the inquiry, and the public which followed it with such interest, will be left in no doubt as to what he thinks should be done on the basis of the disclosures.

The findings will probably be "boiled" into between 7000 and 10,000 words. The attorney-general will also file a chronological record of the probe. This will be of considerable length and may accompany the report of findings or be filed a little later.

Garrett's pensioning while under charges, and for an old injury, will be attacked in the report, it was rumored today, and while Warner will not advise that the pension be revoked, it is said his report will leave no other recourse to the General Court.

TO FORCE ALLEN'S HAND

On the basis of his findings, it is said, Governor Allen will be forced to demand the resignation of Commissioner Wilson if it is not voluntarily offered. Wilson adheres to his previous intention of not offering his resignation.

Warner has finished his conferences with his special assistant, Damon E. Hall, and Asst. Atty.-Gen. George B. Lourie, and the remaining work appears to be the typing and minor corrections.

The attorney-general himself refused to discuss his findings today, but apparently on good authority Beacon Hill gossip declared they would constitute a stinging rebuke to Boston's police force as it has functioned for the last five or six years.

New York, April 30 (AP)—James Matthew Maxon, Jr., 21, son of the Protestant Episcopal bishop coadjutor of Tennessee, was in jail today charged with murder, first degree, and his landlady, who had testified against him at a hearing, was under arrest for illegal possession of firearms.

The landlady, Mrs. Rose Hickey, 55, was arrested yesterday after police found two pistols and 100 rounds of ammunition in her rooming house in West End ave. She admitted possession of the guns, explaining that she had taken them from roomers two years ago to prevent trouble.

The guns were found in the room in which police charge Maxon beat David Paynter, a 70-year-old printer, to death.

PRESENT NAVAL PACT TO HOOVER

Washington, April 30 (AP)—President Hoover today received the United States official copy of the London naval treaty.

Secretary Stimson, who headed the American delegation to the conference, presented the document to the President on the south grounds of the White House.

Mr. Hoover is anxious for the Senate to act on the pact at this session and was expected to send it to the Capitol soon.

The ceremony of presentation was brief and unostentatious. In the small audience were Secretary Adams and Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, members of the American delegation and operators of talking motion picture machines.

After the ceremony, the conference delegates were entertained by the President at luncheon.

Brockton, April 30—Smoking in bed nearly cost John Condon, 32, his life early today in his room in Taylor ave.

Condon fell asleep with a cigarette in his hand and was awakened two hours later by fire and smoke. He threw the burning bedclothing out the window.

The blaze which had caught the woodwork in Condon's room, was extinguished by the fire department.

URGE SUPPORT OF BANK LAW

Forced liquidation of savings banks would be one of the greatest banking calamities that could come to Massachusetts, Bank Commissioner Roy A. Hovey told the House Ways and Means Committee today.

He revealed that attempts to coerce liquidation of savings banks have been made by commercial banks.

The committee was considering a redraft of a bill which provides that a savings bank contemplating liquidation must serve notice on other savings banks situated within 20 miles of the institution so that, with the consent of the bank commissioner, there may be a savings bank sonsolidation.

Harry P. Gifford, representing the Massachusetts Savings Bank association, said that queries sent to savings banks showed 124 favored the proposed legislation and only six opposed.

GIRL UNAFRAID

—BY GLADYS JOHNSON—

CHAPTER 46

Her first thought was that he had been drinking to excess. His face was ghastly, his eyes wild. It was his will alone which was holding him together.

"I shouldn't be here, of course," he began in an unnaturally calm voice, "but I had to come. You see . . . he died. The baby."

"The baby! Oh, Ken . . ."

He nodded very gravely. "Poor old colonel. Such a little thing, so little, Ardeth."

"When?" she asked gently.

"Four days ago. They buried him yesterday. Such a tiny casket. I never realized that babies took such little caskets."

"Where is Cecile?" her voice was sharp.
was sharp.

"Cecile? Oh . . . She's gone away. Her nerves, you know. She's awfully nervous. She went on a trip. It was all planned before . . . And there wasn't any use staying here, you see. She—she couldn't change matters . . . So—she's gone. Last night, I think it was. I'm sort of mixed on dates. Days and nights got tangled."

Ardeth put the key in the lock and pushed him gently ahead of her into the dark shop.

She lit the lamp in the back room and looked at Ken. She saw then that he was dazed with fatigue. His face was white and it shone moist in the soft light.

"What have you been doing, Ken?" she asked gently as she pushed him toward the couch.

"Walking. I think I walked all over the city. It sort of helps to walk. Shouldn't have come here—" He made an effort to pull himself together. "Get you in a row if people saw. . . But I couldn't get you out of my mind. You liked the little fellow. I wanted to be with someone who—who liked him."

He sighed deeply. Leaned over and planted his elbows on his knees. Wisely Ardeth left him talk.

"You called him pretty—" Ken's low voice. "He wasn't, of course. . . . Not like other babies. But I guess even a baby likes to be called pretty. And he was awfully bright. An awfully bright little fellow. Funny, isn't it; it helps to talk about him. . . ."

"Go on," said the girl softly. She had slipped out of her coat and hat and seated herself on the couch beside him. "Tell me some more, Ken."

He slanted a weary blue glance up at her. "Gee . . . you're sweet, Ardeth. Well . . . he had a lot of personality. Not like a baby. Like an older person, you know."

Remembering the old soul which had looked out of those baby eyes, the girl nodded.

"I had an idea he was lonely," Ken went on. "He seemed to like to be with me. And so good all the time! Hardly ever cried. That was the trouble. Lack of vitality, the doctor said. He seemed to come into the world tired. But somehow, I never thought about him dying. He was so cold. . . . Strange to see death in a baby. . . . Why, you're crying, aren't you, dear."

He leaned over slowly and laid his lips for a moment against her wet face.

"Never thought a little fellow could knock me out like that. And I thought of you. I wanted to see you. I knew you'd understand how I feel—" He drew a long weary sigh.

Ardeth rose.

"I'm going to make you some hot tea, Ken. You're shaking with chill. Lean back against the pillows, dear. Put your feet up. That's it—"

She put a small pan of water on the gas jet which stood behind a screen. Put tea in the blue pot. Took a cup and saucer from the cupboard.

When she came back to the couch with the steaming cup, Ken was asleep.

For a moment she stood motionless looking down at his unconscious face. Relaxed like this, something of the bleakness had faded from his face. There was something of the gay Ken she remembered. She put out a hand and smoothed back the damp brown hair.

So intent, she was, that she did not see the face pressed to the alley window. The paint which Jeanette had put on it when she planned the Smokery, had worn thin from many washings, and the yellow theatrical gauze which draped it did not hide the room from one looking in from the dark alley.

Unaware that she was watched, Ardeth flung a blanket over Ken's long figure. Then she reached over and pulled the cord of the floor lamp. The room blinked into a darkness relieved only by the dim rose glow of a night lamp.

Ardeth sat down in the big chair and closed her eyes. But not to sleep. She sat in the stillness broken only by Ken's weary breathing and now and then a troubled mumble.

Too tired to think . . . only pictures of the night came crowding back on her. Pictures like the troubled fragments of a dream.

Neil and old Granny in the red kitchen. Ah, the past was closed to her. Nothing for her there. Not even if she would, could she re-enter. And the future . . . A future where she could not follow Ken, even to comfort him. That Ken should turn to her for comfort for the dead child! The irony of life.

A wave of pitying love went from her, leaving her weak and sick. This moment—snatched from fate. These quiet hours, hidden from the world. Ken and herself . . . Ken, more truly her own than he had ever been. For this brief time she had him—had him to comfort—to strengthen. A fierce, protecting ownership welling up in her heart.

She went over to kneel softly beside the couch. Ken and herself, in this stolen hour. Hidden in the dark heart of the city. Ken, turning to her, a refuge . . . She felt unshed tears in her throat.

She studied his face. So thin . . . The sensitive mouth compressed in sleep as though he still held himself together by sheer force of will.

Her own. This proved it, didn't it? This instinctive turning to her for comfort? They belonged to each other. A thousands things proved it!

The tears were hanging on her lashes now. One splashed to his face.

And suddenly his eyes were open. Looking steadily up into her own, very wide and dark in this dim light.

His arm went about her neck drawing her face down on his own.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

I dug out of a historical document that just 102 years ago today cows were chewing the cud on Boston Common. Those were the good old days, when no signs appeared "Keep off the grass" or "Seeded ground." It might be interesting during part of this summer to put the cows again to work grazing on the Boston Common as part of the Tercentenary celebration. Visitors from the Far West would enjoy this.

Chelsea Mayor Endorses Five-Cent Fare Fight

Editor Boston American:

Appreciating the effect that the editorial in the Boston American has in awakening the people of Greater Boston to the fairness of our cause. I must voice my sincere gratitude for the endorsement of my efforts to have a five cent fare from Chelsea to Revere Beach during the summer months.

We are passing through a crucial economic period, the effects of it being found in the deplorable conditions prevailing throughout the entire nation that are plainly visible in hundreds of homes in our city. There are slight signs of improvement for the future, therefore, in making the five cent fare a reality, thousands of men, women and children in our community will enjoy the surf and sunshine more frequently and easily. It must be made possible in order to allow those who are indigent to take advantage of the cool ocean breezes instead of remaining in the sweltering heat of the city. Chelsea mothers and children would delight more often in the crystal sands, the sea and fresh air of a beach that is only three miles away were this temporary policy established.

Although the distance is short the cost is great. The beneficial results that Chelsea residents may derive is not the only argument to be presented. The patronage of the railway line may increase so greatly that its source of revenue will be enlarged. A public utility must work with a municipal corporation in furthering any project that will result in the public good or promote the public welfare, because its success will be interwoven in the stability of both. I am glad that the Boston American has joined me in this fight as it manifested in the editorial of April 23, 1930. Let us continue to strive together and we cannot help but win it.

Favors Reunion of Ex-Appendix Owners

Editor Boston American:

I notice by the papers that there is a call for "Appendix Day" in Boston. This means that all who had their apendix removed, will meet in a central place and just tell how they feel without the inflammation of the vermiform appendix of the caecum. It is well known now that the appendix was put there in its place, when the human race were contented to eat herbs, which was the primitive food of human beings.

Had we all been contented to eat herbs the appendix would never have been inflamed.

Really, I do not see why fat men should get together annually and have clam bakes, and not former appendix owners get together and eat Brussels sprouts.

A FORMER APPENDIX VICTIM.

He Favors Mayor As Ruler of Police

Editor Boston American:

Place the police department of the City of Boston under the authority of the mayor of Boston. Anyone who went through the police strike of years ago, as I did, knows the reason for this, which I do not care to make public now. But there is a reason for this change. H. Y. L.

Points Out Need for Traffic Officer

Editor Boston American:

The most dangerous corner for pedestrians in Boston is corner of Somerset st. and Ashburton pl.

There is no traffic light or officer there, and it takes skill and patience to cross from one curb to another. Just try it, after coming out of the Boston City Club or any other places in the vicinity. B. H. L.

Machinery Not to Blame for Unemployment

Editor Boston American:

The unemployment situation seems to have engendered a debate over the benefits of machinery to workers.

In the past, machinery has reduced the daily working hours from twelve to eight and has increased the daily wage.

The present unemployment situation is a logical step in a further progressive evolution that will reduce the daily working hours from eight to four or five and maintain or even increase the present daily wage.

Then some people will continue to growl and join socialistic and communistic organizations; while others will use the extra time and energy to better themselves materially by taking advantage of the unlimited American opportunities in city and country.

There will also be great intellectual and spiritual progress in the world, making mankind worthy of the biblical designation: "Ye are Gods."

Favors Young People in Church Choirs

Editor Boston American:

The idea put forth last Monday before the Baptist ministers in this city, that young people should do most of the singing in churches rather than prima donnas, is worth consideraing.

I think that the day for quartet singing in churches is waning. We are now popularizing vested choirs of young men and women. An observer of these changes in musical talent in Boston, notices the old fashioned quartet is a rarity in large cities. There is undoubtedly a fashion in the makeup of church choirs and it is tending more than ever towards congregational singing. N. M. MONRO.

Lauds American Editorial Stand

Editor Boston American:

Having read with deep interest and profound gratitude, the front page editorial in Boston American, April 24, I wish to express my approval.

Mr. Hearst can always be found at the front fighting for democracy. Long may he live. May his name and work live in the minds of the American people so long as the sun shall rise and set.

We often hear it said, "The Boston American is too sensational." Well, if publishing facts and trying to arouse the people to see the terrible conditions which prevail, is sensationalism, then the Boston American stands convicted.

I am not Red, nor Blue, but when I think of prohibition and prison conditions, also unemployment and other unproductive groups I wonder how publishers and others with powerful influence can wear a serene smile, and sleep soundly, without raising a protesting voice.

Lindbergh Still Ruler of the Air

Editor Boston American:

The new movement in the air that Lindbergh is the ruling figure in, confirms the impression which many have entertained of his talents. He combines the mingling of the artist and mechanic. He is the winged youth of America, splendid, brave and chivalrous. He is a real explorer and deserves such a distinction. It is the spirit in which a man does a thing that counts. This wins attention to Lindbergh constantly, no matter where he goes or what he does, this trail of light follows him everywhere. H. J. KELLEY.

Praises Editorials In the American

Editor Boston American:

The pillorying of the power trust on the editorial page of the Boston American (April 25) is beyond all praise. The Hearst papers have done a most important service to the entire country in smoking out this body from its lair and holding it up to the excoriation which it deserves. If this exposure does not force the present administration and Congress to act, it has at least opened the way for the people to act.

Better they wake up now than have a revolution later, or the base betrayal and surrender of the liberty bequeathed by our Revolutionary sires. Our press so seldom speaks in the American idiom or language that it was inspiring and refreshing to hear the Boston American talk real American in dealing with the late Naval Conference, the World Court, League of Nations and the opium menance.

New Hampshire Work Arresting Tuberculosis

Editor Boston American:

What with prohibition, world peace, politics and this and that pouring into your letter box, I wonder if I might not take a little space in your columns to tell your readers of the constructive work that the New Hampshire Tuberculosis Association is doing to stamp out a long recognized menace to the country.

Did you know that the State of New Hampshire leads New England with the lowest tuberculosis death rate, according to the latest figures from the Census Bureau at Washington? In the Granite State the death rate from the white plague for every 100,000 persons is 51. Other New England States follow with Massachusetts, 65.7; Connecticut, 57.5, Maine, 57.9; Vermont, 58.2, and Rhode Island with 62.4.

Because of New Hampshire's record our work is receiving nation-wide recognition. Our exceedingly low tuberculosis death rate indicates that the readily curable cases—the childhood infections—are being caught early.

During the past year there have been the largest gains in arrested cases and cures of the dreaded disease, tuberculosis—the total number being 2783. Over 400 childhood tuberculosis victims are now on the road to recovery.

Through our childhood clinic service we have been able to accomplish this record. Besides the health instruction to children coming under our supervision in our regular clinics and the school examination clinics, we reach many thousands of New Hampshire boys and girls with a direct educational message through the modern health crusade for children and the keep well clubs.

Mexico City, April 30 (AP)—Sixteen Catholics arrested Sunday for parading in violation of the religious laws have been sent to jail. A memorial asking their immediate release has been sent to President Ortiz Rubio.

McCORMACK IN BITTER ATTACK ON LEAGUE

Washington, April 30 (US)—Americans opposed to the United States joining the League of Nations, its court or any of its creatures, should speak in unmistakable language to their public officials.

That appeal was made by Rep. John W. McCormack (D.), of Massachusets, in an address before the Washington Council, Knights of Columbus, here last night.

President Hoover's decision to ask the Senate to ratify American adherence to the League Court, brings the issue squarely before the country, McCormack declared.

AGAINST ALLIANCE

"There is no problem confronting the American people that concerns us more than whether or not we shall adhere to the World Court and later become a member of the League of Nations," he said.

"Either one means departing from our traditional policy of 'no entangling alliances' and the entering into European field of diplomacy and intrigue.

"The question is whether the policy of Washington, Madison, Jefferson, the Adamses and every President and American down to present years, has become obsolete and should be discarded.

"Have our needs developed to such an extent that it is advisable and necessary for America to enter into a field of alliances, the primary purpose of which is anticipation of and preparation for war?

SOUNDS WARNING

"I do not feel that world conditions warrant us in departing from our policy, if we ever do.

"Public opinion in America will not permit the assumption of power or the taking of an international journey which it will not countenance.

"As our public opinion has always been watchful of our international policies in the past, so should it on this occasion.

"It should arouse itself and by its force which already has been felt, warn public officials of the danger of voting for such a course."

FATHER HELD IN KIDNAPING OF HUB GIRL, 6

Stamford, Ct., April 30 (AP)—Joseph Urga, 38, of LaSalle st., Tampa, Fla., is held here as a fugitive from justice from Boston, where he is wanted for alleged kidnaping of his daughter, Anita, six, yesterday.

Bond for his freedom pending extradition proceedings was set at $2500 today.

Urga was arrested here with his daughter last night, headed south in his car. The child will be cared for until extradition proceedings are completed.

Urga and his wife, with whom the daughter lived, have been divorced for nine months. Urga claims his wife was not providing proper living conditions for the girl and he decided to place her in a boarding school.

Walker Breakdown Called Inevitable

New York, April 30 (AP)—Politicians are particularly susceptible to nervous breakdowns, Prof. Henri Laucier of Paris observes.

The professor, whose special study at Sorbonne University for years has been of fatigue and its causes, was not surprised to learn, when he debarked from the liner Paris today, that Mayor Walker of New York had been ordered to rest.

BRITISH WAR CLAIMS HIT BY BOOK

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Universal Service Special Cable.

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

London, April 30—Seven years before the outbreak of the World War in August, 1914, Britain was urged by France to have 300,000 men ready to invade Belgium against Germany.

This is revealed today in the publication of volume six of "British Documents on the Origin of the War" by the government stationer's office. The volume's 796 pages are crammed with sensational revelations which appear to belie Britain's claim of 1914 that she was forced into the war because of the German violation of Belgium neutrality.

"Generals at the front in war time have no time to think of such small matters as neutrality and international engagements."

This statement was made by the late Georges Clemenceau, "Tiger" of France, to King Edward VII of Britain, when the Tiger urged the British king in 1907 to have 300,000 British troops ready to go through Belgium as "a diversion against a German assault on France."

This is but one of the surprising revelations in the British publication.

The value of European agreements, army and naval concords such as recently concluded at the London naval conference, is best demonstrated in this volume, which shows conclusively the Anglo-French agreement between their respective general staffs and the general plan for British violation of Belgian neutrality by landing troops in Belgium in the event of a Franco-German war.

As far back as April 8, 1911, Col. W. E. Fairholme, British military attache at the Paris legation, reported to the British ambassador a conversation he had with the late Marshal Foch, then commandant of the staff college of the French army. According to Fairholme Foch said:

"War with Germany will come, and big events may be expected after 1912. I am firmly convinced of the urgent necessity for an understanding between the British and French governments regarding the form which their joint action should take in event of a Franco-German war."

GANDHI'S 2D SON IS GIVEN YEAR

New Delhi, India, April 30 (AP)—Devi Das Gandhi, youngest son of Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, today was sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment.

He has been charged with sedition. In a statement before the court yesterday he said:

"The moral wrong done my country by Great Britain has no parallel in history and even surpasses the material wrong which requires to be declared from the housetops."

This is the second son of Gandhi to be sentenced to prison during the present disobedience campaign. Ram Das Gandhi early this month was sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment for defiance of the salt laws.

Ramanand Sanyasi, a preacher, today was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment on the charge of sedition.

Ship's Barber Had Girl in Every Port, Wife Testifies

Detroit, Mich., April 30 (AP)—The traditions of sailors having a sweetheart in every port holds good for ship's barbers as well as the ordinary run of seamen, if you take the word of George W. Smith's wife.

Mrs. Smith, who wants a divorce, told Judge Theodore W. Richter here that her husband was for a time ship's barber on the Mayflower, former presidential yacht. She produced a lot of postcards purporting to show that George had upheld the traditions of the men who go down to sea in ships, gathering a feminine following from Portland to Palm Beach.

Roosevelt Heads Exclusive Club

New York, April 30 (AP)—The River Club, modeled after the most exclusive clubs of London, is to be established on the East river by a group of prominent society men and women.

It will be housed in a new apartment building fronting on the river. The membership will be limited to 400 from New York and 200 from other cities. There will be two indoor tennis courts, three squash racquets courts, a gymnasium, a swimming pool and a boat landing. Kermit Roosevelt is president.

2 BOYS HELD IN BABY BURNING

Wewoka, Okla., April 30 (AP)—Two alleged "torch" slayers of 2-year-old Ray Yadon, of Cromwell, Okla., were held in jail here today while officers considered filing murder charges against the prisoners, eight and ten years old respectively.

The baby died yesterday, investigators said, from burns received when S. T. Treadwell, 10, lighted clothing that previously had been soaked with gasoline by the boy and his brother, Paul, 8.

S. A. Boyle, juvenile officer, said the brother would be given a hearing in juvenile court. If found to know right from wrong a murder charge may be filed against the older child, Mr. Boyle announced.

BAN ON WOMEN PACIFISTS UP TO CONGRESS

Washington, April 30 (INS)—Congress will tackle the question of whether a woman must take an oath to bear arms in time of war to win American citizenship.

This was assured today after the House immigration committee, yielding to demands of advocates of the bill of Representative Griffin (D.) of New York, decided to open formal hearings on May 8.

The stage was set for a battle royal between women's organizations, pacifists, patriotic societies and others over a question which has been agitated since the Supreme Court upheld the citizenship ban on Mme. Rosika Schwimmer, noted Hungarian woman pacifist, because she would not agree to take up arms to defend the Constitution.

The question was raised again this week when Federal Judge Bondy in New York refused naturalization to Miss Marie Averill Bland, Canadian, who nursed American soldiers in the world war.

Although the Griffin bill has been repeatedly postponed by the committee, unwilling to project the controversy into Congress. While the naturalization requirement has been denounced as foolish by opponents, the proposed change has been attacked on the ground that it opens the doors of citizenship to conscientious objectors and pacifists.

MILLIONS FOR POWER PLANTS

New York, April 30—According to the National Electric Light Association, 11 of the largest construction projects of the electric light and power industry which will be either completed or commenced during 1930, will have an ultimate capacity of nearly 3,000,000 horsepower, and will require an investment of more than half a billion dollars. In addition to this there are numerous smaller projects which will involve an outlay of several hundred millions of dollars.

Of these 11 large projects, five are steam and six water power. One of these plants is a 150,000 h. p. steam generating station of the Duke Power Company, at River Bend, N. C. This plant is said to be 50 per cent greater than any of the plants in the South owned by this company.

COURT ORDERS MORRIS' WIFE OFF STAGE

Paris, April 30 (AP)—Nelson Morris of Chicago today won his suit against the managers of the Palace Music Hall, who had disregarded his statement forbidding his wife, Jane Aubert, French actress, to appear on their stage.

The court awarded $2000 damages, rejecting the manager's plea that the Morrises were married in the United States, where the wife is not obliged to obey her husband.

The court held that all persons living in France were obliged to observe the French legal principle that the wife must obey the husband and that there could be no question of permitting Jane Aubert or the managers of the theatre to be governed by the wifely status or rights in other countries.

The court ordered that the managers should be subject to additional damages of $120 for each performance hereafter at which Miss Aubert appears without her husband's consent.

The world's record established in Germany was 14 hours, 45 minutes.

Honest War Vet Even Pays Interest on 'Stealings'

Washington, April 30 (AP)—An unusually severe attack of conscience ten years after the war has caused an ex-soldier to send the war department a check for $110.76.

An itemized statement he submitted with an offer to accept "such punishment as may be deemed best," read:

Marksman's extra pay received but not deserved, $14.

Three weeks' pay while sick not in line of duty, $24.

Five days A. W. O. L. never discovered by C. O., $5.

Request for reduced railroad fare illegally used, $10.

One small spark coil (may have been government property), $5.

Ten yards of target cloth stolen, $5.

Government stationery and envelopes used, $5.

Interest for 10 years at 5 per cent, $42.76.

The Treasury's already large conscience fund was made the beneficiary of the reform.

15 Pianos to Loan FREE!

We have 15 pianos (Grands, Players and Uprights, both new and used instruments) to place in homes of Boston and vicinity and they may be used until we need them—which will be an indefinite time. A number of the company's retail stores have been discontinued and many of these instruments have been selected from our Norfolk, Richmond and Lynchburg stocks. Instead of storing these pianos to depreciate in value we are ready to take the loss now and have priced these instruments at greatly reduced figures and anyone contemplating the purchase of a piano in the next few months cannot afford to miss this opportunity. All pianos not sold outright will be placed in the homes of families who are interested in owning a piano in the immediate future, and for the valuable advertising we receive by having good families use them. We reserve the right to select the homes in which these pianos are to be placed.

Many radios, phonograph combinations, phonographs and records will be sold at prices almost unbelievable

PUBLIC WORKS CONTRACTS UP 35 PER CENT

Washington, April 30 (US)—As evidence of a rapidly returning national prosperity following the business slump of last fall, Secretary of Commerce Lamont last night told delegates to the United States Chamber of Commerce meeting here that construction contracts for public projects in the first three months of 1930 aggregated $334,000,000.

This was an increase over the corresponding period in 1929 of $136,000,000 or 35 per cent.

In the same period, Lamont said highway contracts reported by the governors of 24 States amounted to $84,000,000 as compared with $32,500,000 a year ago. Municipal bond issues, he added, had increased by about 8 per cent.

REDUCES UNEMPLOMENT

"Such speeding up is sound and prudent and makes a definite contribution to business activity of various sorts and reduces unemployment," Lamont said, adding:

"In general the country is behind in its program of permanent improvement."

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the National Business Survey Conference, created by President Hoover to take the lead in bringing about an economic restoration after the stock market crash, told the delegates that after six months of stabilization effort these conclusions stand out:

"First, that large scale of American industry including the utilities and the railways are carrying out progressively the larger construction programs for the year 1930 which they reported at the first conference on December 5.

SEES BIGGER FOREIGN TRADE

"Second, there is throughout all industry a manifold production of goods to current consumption.

"Third, there has been a policy of cautious merchandising in retail distribution.

"Fourth, that there is evidence in foreign trade of problems of trade disturbance in other countries more general and more widespread than yet realized here. We may reasonably expect shortly an expansion of our foreign trade."

Speaking on "profitless prosperity," John H. Fahey, of Boston and Worcester, Mass., told the gathering that in 1927 more than 60 per cent of the profits of the nation were made by less than 2000 corporations. He suggested that business study this apparently unequal division of national prosperity and if possible correct it.

CONRY RENEWS DEMAND FOR GRANITE

Asserting that "none of the guilty commissioners defended the action of the Metropolitan District Commission in selecting Indiana limestone for its new building, Joseph A. Conry, traffic commissioner of Boston, today reiterated his protest to Governor Allen, asking that nothing but Massachusetts granite be used in the building.

Conry contradicted a statement by Charles P. Howard, chairman of the commission on administration and finance, that he had called the attention of Governor Allen to the fact that the original specifications called for Indiana limestone and that Governor Allen had immediately directed the specifications be changed to Massachusetts granite.

"Is it not a fact that bids on granite are merely invited as an alternate and that figures will be received for both Indiana limestone and Massachusetts granite?" Conry asked.

"The Commission was wrong in travelling to Indiana for material while Massachusetts quarries are closed for lack of work.

"My protest was not late. I still object to having Indiana limestone being considered and I ask the governor and his Council to compel the Metropolitan District Commission to use nothing but Massachusetts granite in that building.

RENO DIVORCE FOR MRS. FIELD

New York, April 30 (AP)—Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field is en route to Reno, Nev., to obtain a divorce from Marshall Field, 2d, grandson of the Chicago merchant prince, her attorney said today.

The attorney, Joseph B. Truesdale, declined to comment on reports of a pre-trial agreement settling on Mrs. Field an annual income of more than $1,000,000, giving her possession of the Field town house at 4 E. 70th st. and custody of their three children, Marshall, Jr., 14; Barbara, 11, and Bettine, six.

Hold Trio in Fatal R. I. Jail Delivery

Providence, R. I., April 30 (AP)—While feminine relatives sobbed, three men charged with murder as the result of the attempted delivery at state prison [illegible] days ago, in which three were killed, today in court heard their cases continued for two weeks at the request of the state.

The trio, John and Ernest Condelmo and Ralph Colarusso, were returned to solitary confinement.

Tercentenary Harbor Tours Urged

City Asked to Charter Boat to Take Visitors on Waterfront Trip

The City of Boston is urged to charter a steamer to be used in showing the historic harbor to visitors this summer in a recommendation of the Chamber of Commerce.

This recommendation was drawn up by the sub-committee on tercentenary affairs of the Maritime Association. The personnel of the committee is: Frank S. Davis, Andrew J. Sides of the Eastern Steamship lines, William J. Fortune of the National Shawmut Bank, H. Ainsley Highman of the French line, and Percy L. Stuart of the N. E. Traffic Club.

The committee asks the city to charter a boat which could carry 500 passengers. What boat was in mind and what amount was involved could not be learned, but it is understood that the committee has a relatively low priced project in mind.

This recommendation is being supported by business men of the harbor. They promise co-operation.

Boston's harbor is superior to all others in the country in point of richness of tradition. Supporters of the ship project feel that the harbor trip might easily be made the outstanding feature of the entire Boston celebration.

Leinster to Start New Divorce Suit

Edinburgh, Scotland, April 30 (AP)—Lord Anderson in the court of session today permitted abandonment of a divorce action brought by the Duke of Leinster in 1926 but about which nothing was done. On April 9 counsel intimated that another action would be brought by the duke.

The duchess, formerly May Etheridge, music comedy star, was bound over for two years April 19 after an attempt at suicide following a quarrel with a man she had been living with in Brixton, witnesses said.

Longshoreman's Gazette

CARL MORRISON, Editor

Vol. 1 No. 18

On excellent authority, the Gazette has learned of an almost incredible feat of strength performed by Michael Buck, known as the "Longshoreman DeLuxe."

Mike's partners in a job in the hold of a Cunard boat had quit, and Mike obtained the services of one Percival Callahan, late of the Canadian Highlanders, who admits being an expert in stowing bacon.

The two got into an argument about a 650-pound box which Percy said could not be stowed during the flooring off. In a fit of anger, Mike grabbed the heavy box and balanced it on his shoulder. With his free hand, he climbed up a 40-foot ladder. Then he tossed the box ashore.

Our authority is Mike's own brother, Patrick, who has a reputation for never exaggerating—that is, not much.

Pat also said:

"What puzzles me is why my brother didn't pick up Callahan and carry him along for ballast."

Bostonians Afloat

On the White Star liner Homeric, arriving in New York today from Southampton and Cherbourg, are: Mr. and Mrs. William Coburn, Thomas Murray, and Henry N. Sweet, all of Boston.

Mrs. J. W. O'Brien, of Boston, will sail from New York today on the Fort St. George, of the Furness-Bermuda line, for Bermuda.

Enters the Cub

Says our busy cub reporter today:

"Did you know that fully 60 per cent of the longshoremen in Boston harbor are ex-service men? There are lots of shavetails, captains and other brass hats. There's a guy called Dutch Fouhey who was a major in the quartermaster stevedoring branch."

Not Stretching This

Our feature man reports the second of his series of items about queer nicknames of longshoremen. Yesterday he related that Johnny Murphy is known as "Box of Bacon" because he fell 40 feet on a box and got up and walked away.

Today our reporter says:

"I have been wondering why J. P. Mullen, head of a longshoremen's local, is known as 'Rubber.' Is it because he rarely stretches the truth? Is he bouncing around town on business all the time? Maybe he likes to gaze at the scenery."

Our Sports Extra

We have been obliged to add another relative to the staff. He will cover harbor sports.

His first item is a "scoop" on the golf editor of the American:

"The steamship golfers are starting up again. This year a club probably will be organized. Leo Coughlin, agent for the Southern Steamship Co., is the leader in the movement and wants to hear from the other addicts.

"Bernie Costello, of Rogers and Webb, who made a hole in one in his second game of golf last year is out to repeat in 1930.

"Edward Bemis, customs house foreign service man, is spending his entire two-week vacation practicing his game.

"That famous team of Arthur Lane, of Rogers and Webb, and Leo Coughlin plans to enter the Traffic Club golf tourneys.

"Charles Conant, of Stone and Downer, secretary of the Traffic Golf Club, is a consistent 80 man.

"Other promising golfers are Chet Gardner, of Stone and Downer, Hank Evans, of Doane Commercial Tow Co., Ray Rodey of Norton, Lilly and Co., Tom Paine, George Ryan and Bob Lockhead, of Rogers and Webb."

Today's Superstition

The ringing of bells on ships was held by old-timers to be a warning. They believed that if a ship sank her bell would toll no matter how firmly lashed the tongue might be. The reason for this belief probably is that routine bell ringings have always been regarded as of great importance, and must be closely observed. Years ago some master solemnly told that tale about ghost bell-ringing to scare his men into more careful attention to signals.

Medal of Honor Man

The West Eldara will arrive in port next Saturday from Antwerp with 2403 tons of general cargo for Boston. Her captain is A. L. Livingston, who won a French medal of honor by rescuing a French schooner.

Pinkham Laid Up

Capt. O. S. Pinkham, port captain for Rogers and Webb, is laid up for repairs in a Newburyport hospital. He and his wife were injured in an automobile accident last Sunday. The captain is a jovial sort, and a crack bowler.

Sea Foils Attempt to Save Crew of 39

Tokyo, April 30 (AP)—The Japanese freighter Luzon Maru which drifted on the rocks near Cape Inubo, Ibaraki Prefecture, was breaking up today under the pounding of high seas which foiled attempts of rescue ships to remove her crew of 39.

The wreck was only a quarter of a mile offshore and the distress signals displayed by the men aboard the freighter were easily seen in nearby villages. A naval plane from the Kasumigaura base circled overhead, unable to help.

5-CENT FARE FOR CHILDREN IN SUMMER

The summer five-cent fare for children under 12 on all car and bus lines operated by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway will go into effect on June 1, it was announced today.

This reduced fare will apply to the route between Scollay square and Revere Beach as well as to the 200 other lines operated by the company. It will continue until September 1.

A recommendation was made to the trustees that a survey be made to determine the practicability of operating buses from Chelsea sq. to Revere. This move followed a conference held in the office of Mayor John J. Whalen of Chelsea.

This request will be acted upon at the trustees' meeting next Monday and, following their decision, immediate action will probably be taken by the Chelsea Board of Aldermen and the City Council of Revere.

Among those present at the conference were Charles W. White, acting mayor of Revere; William S. Henry, president of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce; Samuel Robie, editor of the Chelsea Evening Record; Sen. Conde J. Brodbine, and A. E. Meyers, superintendent of the Chelsea department of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway.

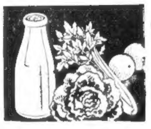
How to use Milk ...for Economy



When Milk bills go down...
Food bills go up...

AND the reverse is equally true. Let any one who doubts it raise the family milk quota to the scientific health standard (a quart a day for each youngster—a pint or more for adults) and the saving in more expensive foods will be proof enough. For, no matter how good any one food may be, milk makes it better for you. Hence, the eating satisfaction of cream soups, chowders and stews; creamed vegetables and sea foods; puddings, custards and ices.

With milk in the house you're never at a loss for tasty, satisfying dishes to make up the balanced diet necessary to family well being.

The "watchdog of the family budget" will appreciate this economy tip.

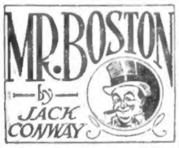
U. S. Women Golfers Play British Tomorrow



MR. BOSTON —by— JACK CONWAY

MR. BOSTON displayed considerable interest today in the sailing of the S. S. Mauretania from New York for England with the members of the United States Walker Cup golf team aboard.

"I am rooting for the success of our Walker Cup golfers," said Mr. Boston. "Francis Ouimet, Boston's own golfing champion, is once more a member of the Walker Cup team.

Jack Conway

"I can look back 17 years to that rainy day at The Country Club in Brookline when Ouimet, then a slip of a boy just out of the ranks of the caddies, defeated Ted Ray and Harry Vardon in the playoff of the national open title tourney.

"Ouimet's victory over the famous British golfers did more than anything else to establish golf in the United States. He put the game on the front page of every newspaper in the United States. Ouimet and the thousands of star American golfers who have followed him have proved that American golfers can today compete on even terms with the best in the world.

"The Walker Cup matches will be held on May 15 and 16 at Sandwich, while the British amateur championship will be staged during the week of May 26 at St. Andrews, Scotland.

"What a triumph it would be for the brilliant Ouimet if he could play on another winning Walker Cup team and then win the British amateur title.

"Meanwhile golf, whenever a big match is being staged, is out on the front page where Ouimet placed it 17 years ago.

"Golf was once rated as a high-brow sport, but now everybody plays it. The links game has cut in seriously on baseball, yachting and other summer sports. It gives personal competition and brings health to all those who play the game."

Ernie Schaaf Wins New Honors for the Hub

FREDDY LANE called Mr. Boston's attention to Ernie Schaaf's victory over Tommy Loughran at Philadelphia.

"Schaaf has added to the ring honors which have come to the Hub during the past few years," said Mr. Boston. "The fact he licked Loughran in his home town proved there wasn't anything questionable about his victory.

"The Fighting Viking is a hard, earnest battler and has punched his way out front. He will now set sail for a shot at Jim Maloney at one of the ball parks during the coming summer. This is a 'natural' and will prove that Boston is still a hotbed for boxing when the fans are offered a first-class attraction.

"Jack Sharkey led the advance of New England's heavyweights. He has been followed by Jim Maloney, who tackles Armand Emanuel on the coast on May 12, and by Jack Gagnon who takes another shot at Tuffy Griffith at Chicago tonight.

"Sharkey, Maloney, Schaaf and Gagnon are all heavyweights. John L. Sullivan, if alive, would be proud of these Boston boys who are carrying on in his old pastime."

Tom Green Gives Aid to Worthy Charity

TOM GREEN called Mr. Boston on the telephone and asked him to say a few words in regard to a benefit which will be staged at Cauley Hall, Charlestown, tonight for the widow and seven children of the late George Harrold.

"Some of the best of our boxers and wrestlers will be on hand to do their stuff," declared Tom. "We shall also have a flock of entertainers on the job. Drop over and you will witness a fine show."

Jack Sharkey is sticking to his policy of only battling the best," asserted Mr. Boston, "in asking Bill Carey to try to induce either Gene Tunney or Jack Dempsey to come back and meet him in 1931 in the event he beats Max Schmeling in their world's heavyweight championship mill on June 12 for the New York Milk Fund.

"Damon Runyon tells me the advance sale for the Sharkey-Schmeling match has already passed the $250,000 mark. It is a certainty that the receipts will top the Dempsey-Sharkey gate of $1,083,000. The best thing about the show is the fact that the profits will go to the Milk Fund, which will give happiness to thousands of children during the summer.

BATCHELDER HAS FINGERS SPLINTERED

Sam Batchelder, veteran Harvard varsity catcher, may be lost for the balance of the season, due to injuries received in the Harvard-Colby game.

X-ray pictures today revealed that the Harvard backstop had splintered the index and middle fingers of his right hand, and this means that he will be out of uniform for at least a month, doctors declared.

Rex Finke, who subbed for Batchelder after the finger-splitting episode in the sixth of yesterday's debacle, will continue to be Mitchell's first-string catcher until Batchelder gets back.

Eddie Mays, Mitchell's regular keystone sacker, is also retired for this week with an eye stye. While the optic will prevent Mays from playing tomorrow against New Hampshire, it is not serious enough to lay him up long.

In the meantime, Mitchell will present a slightly altered lineup for the Wildcats tomorrow.

Red MacHale will be called upon to work on the mound. Johnny Carver goes to second base in place of Mays, and Finke catches in place of Batchelder.

The Colby game boosted Harvard's batting average considerably, but Coach Mitchell was far from satisfied with the Crimson's fielding.

Colby came very near upsetitng the dope yesterday. Harvard got off to a two-run lead in the first, but in the second the Maine team got one on Donovan's circuit drive. In the third, Colby went out in front with three more, and in the fifth, banged Page for four more tallies.

Harvard came up in the fifth to hit Brown for five singles, a triple by Ben Ticknor, and a homer by Wood. This barrage netted eigth runs. In the sixth Wood and DesRoches got successive circuit drives.

GAGNON WEIGHS IN AT 188¼

Chicago, April 30 (AP)—Jack Gagnon, Boston heavyweight, will have a slight weight advantage over Tuffy Griffith of Sioux City, Iowa, when they meet in their return engagement at the Chicago Stadium tonight.

Gagnon weighed in at 188¼, while Griffith weighed 187 on the official scales of the Illinois State Athletic Commission today.

Tuffy is out to redeem himself for the six-round knockout at Gagnon's hands a month ago in Philadelphia.

While odds were definitely in favor of Griffith when the rematch was made three weeks ago, they have dwindled almost to evens. Gagnon has impressed the many who have viewed his workouts. Both fighters appeared to be in good condition.

One important ally Gagnon will have tonight is psychology. So clean cut was his victory over Griffith in Philadelphia that he is supremly confident of repeating tonight. Griffith, a cautious fighter, may be too careful and give Gagnon a chance to pile up points by aggressiveness.

Also Gagnon will have a slight weight advantage. As he completed his training he weighed 186½ pounds, Griffith weighed 184.

Sharkey Would Fight Scott Again Bout Would Draw Over $1,000,000 Phil Has Probably Had Enough

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, May 1—Jack Sharkey, of Boston, is on record as saying that if he defeats Herr Max Schmeling, and wins the title of heavyweight champion of the world, his first step will be to go to England and offer to fight Phil Scott right there in the Old Fainter's back yard.

Sharkey made this statement to Ed van Every, boxing writer of the Evening World, and author of the life of the old Roman, William Muldoon.

Damon Runyon

I rather thought at the time I heard of the Sharkey man's declaration that he might be talking to hear himself talk.

But it has since come to me that Sharkey had the thought firmly imbedded in his noggin. He speaks of it constantly. And it would be a gesture somewhat characteristic of him, at that, as well as a great novelty to the sour science.

A heavyweight champion doesn't commonly go around paging opponents. He is usually busy ducking 'em. The Sharkey man likes theatrics, and popping over to England yelling "Come on, Philsy" is something that would appeal to his sense of the theatrical.

And behind it would be remarkable sound business sense. Sharkey knows that he would draw all the loose money in England with Scott. More money, I firmly believe, and at less risk, than he could get in these United States fighting any man now before the public.

Sharkey-Scott Bout Would Draw $1,000,000

I INCLUDE the Manassa man mauler, Dempsey. The opinion of the pugilistic proletariat is that Dempsey is now thoroughly washed up, and regardless of the fact that it paid well to see him whip Sharkey on one occasion, I doubt if it would pay to see Sharkey whip Dempsey. Which is probably what it would amount to now.

Sharkey and Phil the Fainter, in the huge Wembly Stadium, would draw over a million dollars. The feeling against the Sharkey man in England is most intense, and the clients would pay money just to get within booing range of him.

They know their Philip got a tough deal down Miami way, and while I doubt if even the English sports writers who saw that affair, would give Scott a chance to beat Sharkey, the paying clients would surely be more sanguine.

Of course the consent of Phil Scott himself would be necessary to this arrangement. The old fainter has stated that Sharkey is no gentleman, or words to that effect, and perhaps Phil wouldn't care to associate with him, even in his old home town.

It would be a pretty how-d'-y'-do if Sharkey arrived in England, challenge in hand, only to have Phil high-tone him, would it not?

Scott Would Probably Never Return Here

I DOUBT if Phil will ever be brought back to this country to fight Sharkey, even if Sharkey becomes champion, but then you never can tell about the ubiquitous James J. Johnston, who holds the American rights on Philip.

There have been several other occasions when Phil has been so far down that I thought he was assuredly out, only to see James J. Johnston boost him up again.

James J. is all the king's horses and all the king's men when it comes to putting this Humpty Dumpty of fistiana together again.

Phil was flattened by Knute Hansen so rapidly that I never could see how James J. Johnston had the heart to seek to re-establish him. Yet presently James J. had Phil making a couple of good fights, and the next thing you knew Philip was back up higher than when he started. He was dismissed as hopeless after getting away with a foul claim on Von Porat, and a few months later was fighting Sharkey at Miami.

This time he was really and truly fouled, but the public reaction seemed to be that it served him right. Phil sailed for home 'mid loud buzzes of public rejoicing over his departure, and most people had forgotten him when Sharkey brought him to mind.

It seems the Sharkey man is brooding over the charge that he won unfairly at Miami, and wishes to right himself with one and all. So he is going to beard Philip in his den, so to speak. Well, well, it sounds interesting, anyway.

Busy Week for Tufts Athletes

The Tufts sport schedule is rather heavy during the remainder of the week with tennis, baseball and track in the limelight.

The varsity tennis team will meet the Harvard seconds at Cambridge this afternoon and the freshman netmen will meet Malden high at Tufts tomorrow afternoon.

The track team will take part in the Harvard Intercollegiates to be held at Cambridge on Friday and Saturday against Harvard, M. I. T., Boston University, Northeastern and Boston College.

Bowdoin will be the only opponent the baseball nine will meet, the Jumbo being the host to the Bowdoin nine on Saturday as one of the Junior Day attractions.

George, B. U. Ball Captain, Breaks Leg

In their game with Boston College, Saturday, B. U. will seriously feel the loss of Norman George its fast-running and hard-hitting capt. who received a broken ankle while sliding to third in the third inning of the game with Tufts.

George was rushed to the Newton Hospital for X-ray and the broken bone was set today. He had just returned from the Philadelphia relays where he captained the B. U. track team in the class B relays.

When he is graduated this June, George will leave with the honor of having been B. U's. outstanding athlete—the only man in this part of the country playing on two major sport teams in the same season.

Redheard Let Out

Joe Redheard, who was trying for a pitching job on the staff of the Hazleton Moutaineers of the NYP League, has been released by Manager Walter Holke.

Diamond Pick-Ups

President Ernest Barnard of the American League, who is making a tour of the circuit, was a spectator at the second Sox-Athletics game. The "prexy" has visited every league city except Philadelphia and stated that he found unprecedented interest in baseball everywhere.

After looking over all the clubs, he predicts that the present race will be one of the closest ever in the American League. He looks for Washington, New York, Detroit and Cleveland and Chicago as well as the champion Philadelphia Athletics to be in the hunt most of the way and for St. Louis and the Red Sox to cause plenty of trouble.

He thinks that the Sox have one of the finest pitching staffs in the league and that Tom Oliver is one of the prize rookies of the season.

Despite the critisicm which has been heaped on the American League's new balk rule, the boss believes that it is a great help to base runners and will eventually lead to a big increase in stolen bases. He claims that all of the managers and most of the pitchers in the organization are in favor of it.

He admitted being deeply interested in the plan to stage baseball at night under flood lights. He doesn't believe that the major league clubs will ever do it, but thinks that the scheme might be a blessing to many minor leagues, if satisfactory light can be provided.

Tom Oliver made two safeties while his booster was looking on to bring the total of consecutive games in which he has hit safely to nine, which is quite a record for a rookie.

George Earnshaw, the Mack's big right-hander, has lost his control completely. He can't get his great fast ball anywhere near the plate, and when he slows up in an effort to locate the platter, the hostile batsmen greet his delivery like a long lost relative.

Danny MacFayden has a broken finger, received when he stopped a line drive in Monday's game. That probably accounts for his unexpected wild spell in the final frame of that contest.

Ex-Braves Hurler Released by Robins

New York, April 20 (AP)—Kent Greenfield, right handed pitcher formerly with the New York Giants and the Boston Braves, was given his outright release by the Brooklyn National League club today. Greenfield had just been returned to the Robins by the Fort Worth club of the Texas League, where he was sent last year after reporting with a bad arm which failed to respond to treatment.

Red Sox Release Bayne, Vet Pitcher

William Bayne, veteran big league left handed pitcher and a member of the Red Sox for the last two years, has been released outright to the Chattanooga club of the Southern league, Secretary Hy Mason of the Red Sox announced today.

CAPTAIN IS CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

By T. C. WATSON
Universal Service Special Cable

London, April 30—Thirteen American women golfers, led by Miss Glenna Collett arrived in London last night, after an afternoon of practice on the Sunningdale course, where the team match with the British women opens tomorrow.

The Americans went direct to the golf course after disembarking from the Berengaria. Most of the women got in two practice rounds before dusk, after which Miss Collett said:

"We seemed to have gotten rid of our sea legs in no time at all and we had no difficulty in making a good showing this afternoon. The course was in excellent condition and we believe that by tomorrow we will be thoroughly familiar with the course.

"I would say that our chances of defeating the English were excellent, but we are not predicting victory. Golf is too uncertain a game to permit over-confidence. But we are confident."

Practically all of the American invaders plan to enter the British women's championship, the only major English title that has never been won by an American. This championship begins at Formby May 12.

U. S. Team Will Play French on May 27

After this comes the team match with the French women starting May 27 on the St. Germain links. Most of the American party will sail for home early in June.

In addition to Miss Collett, the American golfers who arrived on the Berengaria include Miss Virginia Holzderber, Mrs. Hazel A. Martelle, Mrs. Lee Mida, Mrs. Leo Federman, Miss Louise Fordyce, Mrs. O. S. Hill, Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Miss Peggy Wattles, Miss Rosalie Knapp, Miss Fritzi Stifel, Miss Marian Bennett, Miss Bernice Wall.

Photographers Interrupt Practice of U. S. Golf Team

Sunningdale, Eng., April 30 (AP)—A [illegible] practice of American women golfers here today was interrupted by one of the greatest gatherings of photographers on record. Instead of playing golf, Glenna Collett and her companions were forced by circumstances to make hundreds of practice shots for the benefit of the cameras.

Helen Hicks was one of the most photographed of the group. She played shots from bushes and bunkers and from hillsides while the cameramen shouted "more."

"We are very anxious to get in some golf," said Miss Hicks, "but we can't play at all yet."

The players spent practically the entire morning with the photographers and it was well into the afternoon before they were able to begin serious preparation for the team matches against British women tomorrow.

Bobby Jones Claims to Have Lost Magic Golf Touch

FRIENDS SAY HE IS BETTER THAN EVER

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, April 30.—On his own admission and strictly as man to man, Bobby Jones is boarding the Mauretania tonight for another assault upon the edifice of British prestige in golf firmly convinced that, in the last month, something very disquieting has happened to the touch with which genius has marked him as its own.

It seems that it's just no use. He can't play golf nowadays the way he wants to. He's lost all control. And this, according to his friends, is the way he's lost it:

He has played eight rounds of golf on his home course at East Lake during the last several weeks for an average of 66½ strokes a round. His high round of the performance was a 68, the rest of the display including another 68, three 67's, two 66's and a 63.

He was trying out a new set of clubs when he shot the latter, the friends said in a deprecating whisper. They want to imply that really he should have done better.

Bobby Always Talks Himself Down

There is no swank about Jones. He knows that he hasn't the slightest reason to suspect that he can't play golf, but it is part of his act to talk himself down and not without cause. He dreads making even the most casual utterance about his game, in fear that the statement will be confounded with that of the bombast. I suspect, in addition, that he is just superstitious enough to regard optimism as an invitation to bad luck. Finally, he is a captious self-critic.

So all he would say was that, try as he might, he hadn't been able to retain the touch he showed at Augusta and Savannah this winter and so I let him run on as follows:

"I don't know what it is. Just haven't been able to play my shots for a month. Am I worried? No, I wouldn't say I was. The slump was not unexpected. I never quite get my touch until I get in a tournament. Of course, if this sort of play continued—."

His voice trailed off into a significant pause, which tactily meant that, in such a case, he would entertain slight hope of winning the only major title so far has escaped him, namely, the British amateur championship.

But———.

"He's fifteen pounds lighter than he was before the last national open at Winged Foot," his friends whispered. "That means everything. He's keen. He's ready."

Armed with this information, I returned to the attack. Wasn't it true that Mr. Jones was in better condition for this emergency than at any time in recent years? He conceded that this might be so, with vast indifference.

Good Health Means Little in Golf

"You don't need health to play good golf," said he, dismissing the matter as being without importance.

The intimation was that he would prefer a good, stiff pain in the neck to a couple of rounds over 75 when he gets in the British championship.

"That's a joke," came the inevitable whisper. "Everybody knows that Farrell and Sarazen aren't going to England because Jones is going. They haven't any use for second place."

The Walker cup matches? Mr. Jones promptly admitted that he was more than a little worried about those and, as captain of the team, had done some tentative thinking about the American pairings for the foursomes but wasn't prepared to commit himself. What about that complication with the mashie niblick? Oh, he just changed his stance and, presto, there it was. He hastened to add that he meant any the day when he could play a mashie niblick shot with Horton Smith.

"He's hitting a beautiful long iron"—the whisper.

And so it went, even to the four- [illegible]

A'S HAMMER 3 SOX HURLERS

By JOE CASHMAN

Slaughtering a trio of wild Red Sox pitchers, the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics won their second straight game over the natives by a score of 9 to 5.

Led by Mickey Cochrane and Al Simmons, each of whom made four safeties, the Mackmen amassed a total of 17 hits, including five doubles.

Charlie Ruffing, George Smith and Horace Lisenbee were the victims of the bombardment. Big "Ruff" gave 10 hits, two walks and four runs in the first four innings. Smith gave two hits in the fifth and was taken out in the sixth after allowing two more hits and two runs. Lisenbee permitted three safeties, two walks and one run.

The A's pitching was almost as poor and if the Sox hurlers hadn't picked out just this afternoon to be off color, the natives could have evened up the series without much trouble.

George Earnshaw, who was knocked out of the box in the first inning of the first game, went back to start the second contest. He was as wild as a March hare, passing five and giving six hits before he was yanked in the fifth.

Eddie Rommell relieved him. He gave but three hits and no runs yet he was continually on the verge of being knocked out.

Somerville High Athlete Buried

The baseball game between Malden high school and Somerville high, scheduled for this afternoon, has been postponed until tomorrow so that the classmates and teammates of Philip Parker, Somerville high school athlete who died last Sunday, may attend his funeral. The game will be played at the Malden high grounds tomorrow.

Parker, end on the football team for two seasons and a forward on the basketball team in 1928-1929 underwent a tonsil operation early in March and failed to recover.

BRAVES BLOW UP IN 8TH INNING

Philadelphia, April 30—The second meeting between the Phillies and Braves was a scoreless tie for seven innings with Bob Smith and Roy Benge doing the pitching.

In the eighth, however, just when it began to look like an extra-inning battle, the Phils broke loose and scored eight runs, six more than the enemy were able to collect in the ninth.

12 Phils Bat in Wild 8th Inning

Twelve men went to bat in the wild eighth. Sigman opened with a single and Southern ran for him. Hurst sacrificed and Friberg walked. Thevenow singled, scoring Southern. Friberg scored when Maguire made an error on McCurdy's roller.

Benge singled, scoring Friberg. Thompson singled, scoring McCurdy. O'Doul singled to fill the bases and Klein walked to force in Benge. Southern doubled, sending Thompson and O'Doul home and Klein to third. Brown replaced Smith and Klein scored on Hurst's sacrifice.

Rhiel reached on an error by Southern and went to second and third unmolested in the ninth. Neun walked and continued to second. Maguire singled, scoring both runners and ending the Braves' run-making.

N. Y. PUTS BAN ON CARNERA

New York, April 30 (INS)—True to its word, the New York Boxing Commission today disbarred Primo Carnera and his managerial board from rings in this state.

The commission revoked the license of the giant Italian fighter, his manager, Leon See, and William Duffy, Walter Friedman and Frank Churchill, associated in the management of the Italian.

Tim McGrath, Robert Perry and Robert Laga were declared ineligible, meaning they cannot be issued licenses.

The action of the New York commission is exactly like that of the California Athletic Commission save in regard to Churchill. The coast body suspended Churchill, whereas the New York body revoked his license.

McGrath, Perry and Laga were identified in the management of Leon Chevalier, whose unsatisfactory fight with Carnera prompted the California body's action.

LAWS PUZZLE AUSTRALIAN CRICKETERS

London, April 30 (INS)—The Australian cricket team, just arrived here to attempt recapture of the mythical "ashes" of cricket, should have been trained as lawyers as well as cricketers.

Each of the Aussies carries with him a voluminuos contract of 36 clauses. These bristle with many a "whereas," "inasmuch," "hereafter" and "the party of the second part."

Eating, drinking, smoking, wives, mothers-in-law, modes of travel, broadcasting, talking to newspapermen, laundry, taxi fares, attendance at social affairs and dress are but a few of the matters touched upon in the contracts.

Absolute punctuality is stressed, and the cause forbidding wives to accompany their player-husbands or players to acquire sweethearts is adamant.

Law-Breakers to Be Sent Back Home

A schedule of fines is arranged for breaches of agreement and persistent offenders against contract terms will be sent home. To prevent poaching of Australian stars by English teams, none of the Australian players is permitted to return to England to engage in cricket for two years after the completion of the tour.

The players, after long sessions in quiet corners on shipboard in attempts to master the details of their contracts, have advanced the suggestion that England abandon the intention to send Jack Hobbs and other leading cricket players against them.

Better, they say, field a side of eminent lawyers.

Mechanic Batsmen Pound Out Victory

Mechanic Arts trounced its rival, Trade school, yesterday, 16 to 3, at the Wentworth field. Preskinis, on the Buff and Blue mound, had plenty of stuff, fanned 11 batters and allowed only five hits.

A BEST DOES EXIST

For nearly 300 years violin makers have striven vainly to equal the singing tone of instruments fashioned by the Italian genius Antonio Stradivari. His gorgeous "Hellier" model dated 1679 is shown here.

Believe it or not, there is a best in gasolines, no less than in violins. Any gasoline will make a car go—just as any violin will play a tune. But there's more to music—and motoring—than that. ¶Ethyl fluid has fairly won its place as an essential constituent of any "best" motor fuel today. But all Ethyl does is to "knock out the knock." The gasoline itself does the rest. ¶How superb the gasoline is that goes into Colonial Ethyl is evident from this one fact: Colonial Ethyl's anti-knock rating is definitely superior to that of any other Ethyl fuel sold in its territory. ¶Those who find difficulty in crediting this flat statement are invited to write us for confirmation. Or, better yet, stop and fill up at the nearest Colonial Ethyl pump today. A tank-full will tell the story.

BLOCK REPEAL OF VOLSTEAD, WOMEN TOLD

By NANCY BREWSTER

"The women of Massachusetts will prevent the repeal of the Baby Volstead Act."

This was the parting [illegible] from Mrs. Henry W. Peabody [illegible]

STUDENTS DON'T DRINK

A long program of dry speakers, featured by President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University, who claimed prohibition had filled the colleges and universities of the country, and that in his five years as head of the Back Bay institution had "never seen a student take a drink," and Prof. Thomas Nixon Carver of Harvard, who labeled drunkenness a major vice.

It was climaxed by the breakdown of Sir Wilfrid Grenfell, noted Labrador explorer, who wept as he told of the evils of drink.

The last speaker of the luncheon [illegible] speakers, Sir Grenfell said, told of what he knew existed in American society today relative to drinking. He told of attending a [illegible] the only man who didn't drink.

DRUNKARDS MURDERERS

He said that he had met men from the States in Labrador who came to "get away from alcohol." While he was in practice in England in one of the largest hospitals in the east end of London, Sir Wilfred told of six women coming to his beds, murdered by husbands who had been drinking. [illegible]

HELPED CHICAGO

Sir Wilfred [illegible] Chicago where he met the president of the [illegible] who claimed that prohibition was the best thing that had ever struck Chicago.

[illegible] years ago, Sir Wilfred [illegible] there was a [illegible] corner while today there existed banks or other [illegible] shops.

Lewis E. MacBrayne, representing the Massachusetts Safety Council, said his organization was fairly behind law enforcement and that if there was to be any progress, particularly for people on the highways, the law must be made even stronger than today.

CHEERS GREET SPEAKERS

Much applause greeted the words of encouragement and support offered by the various speakers. The women responded spontaneously, cheering and thunderously registering their approval.

Drunken driving is one of the great dangers today, U. S. Attorney Frederick H. Tarr said. He said there must be state regulation of liquor traffic if there is to be any protection of the citizens.

DE MAR ON RECORD

A telegram read from Clarence H. De Mar, marathoner, placed him unreservedly behind law enforcement and distinctly without sympathy for "the drunks and politicians whose frantic efforts make them hinderers of progress."

In closing the meeting Mrs. Peabody paid tribute to the fairness of the press and the magnificent way in which they had handled the situation.

A musical program was offered by Mrs. M. H. Gulesian and Vaneva Moore.

Mrs. William J. McDonald, sixth district director of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, acted as general hostess throughout the luncheon-meeting.

Get-Together for Better Homes Workers

The workers for Better Homes Week will get together tomorrow evening at the annual get-together to [illegible] their progress, report on better homes and recount of interest the happenings of the week to date.

Storrow, chairman of the Massachusetts committee of better homes in America, will be present as will Rabbi Harry Levi of Temple Israel, who will represent the church and its connection to the home; Mrs. Anna C. Tillinghast, commissioner of immigration, who will talk on the immigrant home in America.

Friday at 2 p. m. the model demonstration apartment at 104 East Canton st. will be open to the public for inspection.

Speakers are as follows: Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, director, Division of Immigration and Americanization, state department of Education; Dr. Sven Knudsen, University of Copenhagen; Tycho M. Peterson, Mrs. Eleanor E. Bang.

Later, on the fairway, Jameson asked:

"Are you wise? Aren't you throwing them together too much?"

"My Dear Dick," said Linda, amazed and a little offended.

"But in view of what you told me—that the girl might be interested——"

JAMESON CARED

"What of that? He can't bring her down here and work her to death without my lasting [illegible] and she has to have some recreation."

"Linda," Jameson exploded, "you are either a saint or a fool."

WONDERFUL THERE

"It's wonderful to be here with you. There's something so restful and happy about the way you and Nils and the children live."

Joan looked at the girl quickly. "I'm glad you feel that," was all she said.

"Most people seem so—feverish. There's so much bickering, and quarreling."

"Everyone goes through a period of [illegible] adjustment," Joan told her. "Nils and I have had ours. It's in back of us. It wasn't easy when we were poor and struggling and so ambitious, and the children came along to complicate matters. But if people love each other enough they'll win through."

"There's Don and Sara. They love each other and [illegible] they [illegible] and Sara gets overworked and nervous and Don's like most men [illegible] when things aren't going smoothly. It does seem to me that nothing I've seen of marriage—except yours—would make me feel I wanted to risk it."

"You're wrong," said Joan. "There are many happy marriages. I think you see the others because you are looking for them. Aren't you trying to find excuses for yourself, Anne?"

"I wonder," Anne told her and smiled tremulously. "Perhaps I'm a coward. Mother and father now—they're happy, I suppose. But it seems to me," Anne said youthfully, "that their marriage is so—dull."

"You're too close to your own people," Joan pointed out. "Happiness right under the eyes is hard to see."

[illegible] WEDNESDAY, A[illegible]

Anne Tells Eaton of Her Ideal

Bright-haired, vital, [illegible] young Anne Murdock had [illegible] three years at the Eaton Advertising Agency when her opportunity came—the opportunity to become Eaton's personal secretary. To work with a man of Lawrence Eaton's breadth and power was something to dream [illegible], for Anne had ambitions beyond a suburban home with Ted O'Hara, who was on her own rung of the ladder. The only beauty Anne Murdock saw in her own home was that of her sister, Kathleen, who had [illegible] deserted that home for a career in the chorus. But Eaton overhears a conversation between his secretary and young O'Hara which leaves him wondering whether he may not have to surrender his efficient assistant to Cupid. Anne senses this and declares that she has no dreams whatever of matrimony.

CHAPTER XVI

The next day Eaton asked Anne how the evening had gone.

"It was fun," Anne told him. "But did you know that Allan Lawson doesn't mean to work—ever?"

Eaton laughed at her gravity.

"Why should he?" he answered. "He inherited several millions on his coming of age. There'll be more, later. The business is safe enough. Safer without the boy than with him I imagine. There's an older brother, a sound sort, not clever but a plugger. This one's a wild kid, but harmless. By the way, he's the catch of the season in his home town," he added, watching her keenly.

Anne tilted her chin. A gesture which not quite unconsciously drew the attention to the soft red curves of her mouth.

"I can't imagine wanting a man who didn't work either with his hands or with his head," she said. "Think of a husband always underfoot. One who went about throwing $10 bills around."

Eaton chuckled.

"I don't think Allan would be much under any one's foot. Did he really? I mean, throw the bills around?"

"More or less."

"So you can't imagine wanting Lawson," mused Eaton. "Well what sort of man could you imagine wanting?"

"No kind at all! But if any," Anne contradicted herself, "one who'd fought his way up. He needn't have a lot of money, but he'd be the sort who'd want to make it. Not for the money itself, but for the success it stands for. A big man with vision; a man who'd be willing to take risks and be a sport if he lost out; a—well, a man!"

After a moment's silence Eaton said: "And I think a man such as you describe would want a girl like yourself!"

SANDERS COMES

Then Sanders came into the office and Anne slipped out without answering. At her desk she thought:

"I wonder if I've been an idiot. Of course, I was describing him. I meant it, all right—but I meant him to know it, too. And he got back at me, rather. I left the opening. Men," thought Anne further, "hate to be too consciously flattered. Still, he might have thought I spoke of a type all business women meet, and if he also thought it applied to him—well, there's no harm done."

It was not the first time she had said such things to him. Once, not long since, she had remarked, in speaking of a man whom Eaton knew in a business way and upon whose attraction for women he had commented, that "such men" were always married.

"But not always happily married," he had answered and had ended the discussion quickly.

Since then, she had been thinking.

From the little she had seen of Linda and Eaton together she had reached the conclusion that while they were excellent friends, they were not emotionally involved one with the other. And because she now admitted to herself that Eaton attracted her strongly, she marveled at the dullness or coldness—of the other woman. She thought, shrewdly enough, that the time would come when Larry Eaton would tire of—friendship and turn elsewhere for a warmer comfort.

But it was impossible not to follow that to its logical conclusion. She knew now that Eaton was not indifferent to her presence, to her nearness. She had seen him flush when, occasionally and accidentally, their hands had encountered.

If she were right, if he cared little for his wife and Linda cared little for him, if he should seek elsewhere and, in seeking, chance upon the nearest person—herself—what would she do?

HURT NO ONE

She told herself defiantly that she would be hurting no one save herself: that no one need ever know. She could keep a clear mind even in a disturbed body. For she did not love Lawrence Eaton, she argued; it was merely that he attracted her as no other man had ever attracted her and that he was englamored in her eyes by his position as her employer.

Diet Hints

Every food provides a certain amount of heat and energy for the body. Food value is measured in terms of calories, which are important in planning a menu for losing weight.

A calory is the amount of heat necessary to raise one liter of water one degree. A liter is slightly more than a quart. The principle is the same as that of boiling water for tea.

Every women knows that to prepare two cups of water in a kettle will take twice as much time as it takes to prepare one cup, over the same size flame.

Calories have been carefully considered in planning the Boston Evening American daily reducing diets. Plenty of vegetables, fresh and canned, are included. Moderate helpings of meat and fish are recommended.

"While there was no increase in the number of pedestrians killed, there was a decided increase in the number of motorists who met their death on the roads.

"There is, however, one redeeming feature in our Massachusetts figures from which we may extract some little consolation. Every year, during the past four years, there has been a notable reduction in child fatalities.

"During recent years Massachusetts has averaged an increase in motor vehicle deaths of about 8 per cent, with the maximum of 777 reached last year. This compares very favorably with the fatality rate in many other states."

Love and marriage do not seem to have a good influence on a player's career at least until it's all over.

ALMA RUBENS GOES BIG IN COMEBACK

Alma Rubens, screen star, recently recovered from a long illness, has returned to the speaking stage. [illegible] star who was a famous legit leading woman before entering a brilliant career in the films, is now at the Keith-Albee offering a group of [illegible] impersonations.

Miss Rubens returns to the stage entirely recovered after a seven years struggle to regain her health. Much of the time during her retirement has been spent in hospitals and sanitariums. At the RKO theater this week the [illegible] feature of "Show Boat," [illegible] and numerous successes who a few years ago was regarded as Hollywood's most beautiful actress is seen in a series of "Rubenesque Imitations of Your Favorite Stars."

The act was co-authored and staged by Mann Holiner, former vaudevillian who has contributed many sketches and bits to Broadway successes as well as material for innumerable vaudeville headliners.

There have been impersonations but the "Ruben-esque Impersonations" of famous theatrical folk are guaranteed to be more than a bit different than any ever yet presented.

Stage Who's Who

William Kershaw

William Kershaw, who acts the fluttering ambassador in "The Love Duel" with Ethel Barrymore in the Wilbur, was born in Lancashire, England. In his own country he appeared as D'Alroy in "Caste," as Babs in "Charley's Aunt" with Brandon Thomas, as [illegible] Quex in [illegible] Henry Esmond in "Eliza Comes to Stay" and as Jerry in "Peg o' My Heart" as well as in several Shakespearean plays. Kershaw [illegible] He was given the role in "The Love Duel" one morning and played it that night.

She's Gay

EVELYN BROOKS

FRIENDS WON IN BIG LOTS

In the opinion of Hollywood folks Lois Wilson holds the non-professional friendship championship of the United States, [illegible] has more personal friends who are not connected with [illegible] than any other [illegible]

During the filming of "The Furies," in which she is featured with H. B. Warner, now at the Fenway, it became a practice on the set to make bets on the number of strangers who would turn up on a given day at the studio asking for Miss Wilson. One day there were 12 [illegible] was the high record, but practically every day there were one or two.

FEW HORSES SUITED FOR CIRCUS

When no less than 200 horses are required to engage in the biggest "Equine Ballet" ever offered for a circus hippodrome track many are "tried and found wanting," according to Frank Asher, master trainer of the Ringling Bros., and Barnum & Bailey Circus, which opens at Boston Garden today.

Asher states that 500 "candidates" were put through their paces before the final selection was made. Then followed two months of training at the Sarasota, Fla., winter quarters. This has resulted in what circus officials declare to be the most remarkable feature in point of bigness, beauty and action ever presented in America. One of the movements, called the "Gavotte of the Garlands," in which each horse is ridden by a rider in costume, is said to be the most intricate performance yet attempted with horses.

The "actors" had to be selected not only for beauty but "horse sense" as well. According to Asher horses do not average up with elephants in the matter of intelligence.

"One out of every two elephants can be taught to perform several tricks," says Asher. "But it is rare when one out of four horses will have the necessary qualifications. Very often an extremely beautiful horse will prove to be absolutely rattle-brained."

Thirty-six per cent of all the work done on farms in the United States during 1929 was performed by trucks and tractors, according to a statement issued today by Howard E. Sneathen, manager of truck sales for the Dodge Brothers Corporation.

"This compares with 18 per cent of farm work performed by trucks and tractors in 1924," Mr. Sneathen continued. "In other words, the use of trucks and tractors on American farms during the last five years has increased 100 per cent."

Daily Health Hint for Readers

A baby used to mother's milk cannot be put on the same formula of cow's milk as another infant of the same age who has been bottle fed. Always obtain a physician's advice in such a case. Some milk may agree with the infant, but watchful care should be taken

This Day in Our History

George Washington was inaugurated first President of the United States in New York City, April 30, 1789. He was elected by Congress. He became President much against his inclination which was to retire to his Mt. Vernon home [illegible] serving two terms, he refused a third.

EXERCISE BRINGS BEAUTY TO CHILD'S LEGS

Daily Routine May Remedy Bowed Condition

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

World Famous Beautician

Josephine Huddleston

During those early formative years every effort should be made to train young [illegible] to react gracefully and healthfully. The health angle, however we will leave to the physicians who are the proper source for such information. I'm sure though, that the exercise I'm going to give you will be approved by your doctor for your daughter's use, as it has been for years.

One of the most important of all such exercises is the one to help straighten bowed legs [illegible] helpful for growing [illegible] all know that such [illegible] harder to correct or [illegible] the bones have [illegible] is equally true [illegible] inform [illegible] age movement [illegible] tion in young children. Frequently, however, this bowed condition is not noticed until [illegible] reached an age when [illegible] from the d[illegible] girls now [illegible] came on the scene before the now commonly given scientific help to doctors had been fully worked out. And, even though your doctor is helping you fight such [illegible] I'm sure he will approve of [illegible] addition to those [illegible] already doing.

Youngsters who are too small to do the exercise alone will have to be helped and undoubtedly this will require patience, but I'm sure you can work it into some sort of fascinating game and thus gain the child's co-operation.

The heels should be placed about an inch apart and the toes must point outward at an angle. The upper part of the body must be pulled up to its full height, and the arms should hang [illegible] at the sides. Then tensing the muscles of the thighs and the legs, the knees should be pushed as close together as possible. This position should be held for a moment before relaxing the muscles and tensing them again.

For the very young children it will probably be difficult to explain what tensing the muscles means, but if you will hold their heels firmly in position, encourage them to stand erect and to then push their knees as close together as they can, a large part of the tensing of the muscles will take care of itself. This should not be repeated for more than three or four times at once for the first few days, and I think that morning and night will be sufficient for the routine for the first few weeks.

As the child becomes accustomed [illegible]

[illegible] ber of times the muscles [illegible] can easily be increased from 10 to 25 times without placing too much stress on the bones.

When giving this exercise to very young children, massage a liberal amount of warm olive oil into the little legs and thighs so that muscle soreness will be avoided. They won't be at all interested if the exercise causes pain after it is completed. Of course, such muscle soreness would disappear after a week or so, but it can be avoided by the gentle massage.

The Crystal Gazer -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

The crystal gazer—growing Gloriette—falls into a [illegible] and sees the story of [illegible] money and no Love [illegible]

There are young things [illegible] with bright, modern minds, whom nothing modern passes by, who seriously mean to hunt for money-marriage, without Love in the bargain.

Well, love and money are a Cinderella dream. Love without money can keep you happy forever; but money without the bread of love turns into a "catrophe" for the lady with a heart.

Money is a wonderful and precious thing. It is ease, [illegible] fear of being old and leaving [illegible] ones we [illegible] it helps children and old people [illegible] less of the world, even the animals, the forests, the beautiful things that dress our world up for us. And we all try to [illegible] and keep all we can of it.

But the girl who deliberately makes a pot of gold her goal in marriage—a delicate business enough if you go into it with honest love—is making a vast mistake.

Start with a flivver, and work together for the Rolls Ritz. That you care for the person you work with is the bright [illegible] crystal.

Gloriette, if [illegible] you [illegible] in the haunted crystal the last [illegible] self if you had married [illegible] ing afield [illegible] your net [illegible] on Love to [illegible] back here, little boy of hearts [illegible] got to have [illegible] somewhere in my scheme of th[illegible]

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

The Voice With the Fallen Arch

Elsie Robinson

They train 'em in this country to be everything from dogcatchers to diplomats—why, oh, why, can't they train 'em to use 'phone?

For the last two months I've been rambling around the country working at my job. And now I'm going home with a couple of sprained [illegible] tonsils, busted bronchial tubes, a disposition that needs [illegible] reading and a paralyzed pal[illegible] [illegible]

* * *

You know how it is. The great moment has at last dawned. You're ready to shoot! All full of whiz-bang! Bustin' to break the news! Yelping for action—speed—co-operation—So you race to the phone. Ring a number. Ring a number. Ring a number!!!

* * *

Slowly, after long intervals, a voice arrives. It [illegible] It stops. It lags. It oozes with all the vivacity of a fish worm after a heavy rain. The voice says something. You do not know what it says. It sounds like the death rattle of a jelly fish. You repeat your question patiently, at first then with accumulating crescendo. But the voice oozes on . . . .

* * *

You persist, however. You restate your case in your sprightliest manner. You use kind, sweet, gay little words of one syllable. You coax and coo. You sparkle and glow. But the voice oozes on—

* * *

And then, if you're a big, mean blonde like me your blood pressure rises 10 points and you probably blow out an ear-drum. Or, if you're a refined, sensitive soul you crawl away from there making funny faces and sobbing in a deep hopeless monotone.

* * *

Now I ask you is this necessary? Can't people be taught a telephone technique as they're taught any other necessary part of business procedure? A telephone call isn't fatal [illegible] or a personal [illegible] of the operator [illegible] act as if it were. It's a vital part of modern life. Phone wires are aerial highways. The world passes over them. Each new signal may herald opportunity, adventure, romance or emergency and the voice that responds to that signal should be alive—alert—on the firing line. But how many are? Most of the voices I've heard in the last six months have fallen arches, inferiority complexes, halt[illegible] and dandruff, at least.

* * *

Yet [illegible] his wares in a [illegible] [illegible] would dream of announcing that he isn't interested in you or your trade and wishes you'd go away and not bother him. Yet he pays a voice good money to do that for him!

Now you tell me.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Man Should Ask the Lady

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A young man I know and I have had an argument which we would like to have you settle. He says that it is proper for an engaged girl to ask a young man to dance, providing she knows him, and that it is not proper for him to ask her to dance. Recently we met at a dance and he, not knowing my fiance very well, did not ask me to dance, later giving me the above explanation. I cannot agree with him because I have always expected a man to ask a girl to dance, whether she be single, married, or engaged. My opinion is that the young man should ask the girl in her fiance's presence and then ask his permission.

We will appreciate it if you will settle this argument for us.

L. B.

YOU are entirely right in your point of view. The gentleman asks the lady to dance with him and then asks permission, casually, of course, of her fiance—"Do you [illegible] Mr. Carlisle?"

Guest's Privilege

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I expect to have two men friends of the family, for dinner some evening in the near future. The question that is puzzling me is what to say in regard to asking them if they care to wash their hands before eating.

C. O.

It is not necessary or especially polite, to ask the question. For we take for granted that our guests have washed their hands before they arrive at our homes for dinner.

However, under special circumstances, it is quite all right for our guests to ask us if they may wash their hands before they enter the dining room. For instance, when we are dining most informally, and when a guest has, say, come from his or her office directly to our home, we should quite take it for granted that they may ask for the privilege of washing the hands before dinner. However, from the very personal nature of the request, it would seem better that the request come from the guests than that it should come from the hostess.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Knitted Frocks Acquire New Graces

By ANN ARDEN

This Modern World, a department of fashions, decorations and social customs.

WE ARE forced to consider the knit frock in a new light this season. The days when it was the peculiar pride and joy of certain [illegible] athletic types whose dullness matched their diligence are long since passed. And now the knit frock is as feminine as any other.

* * *

AS SOMEONE has aptly said, the new knit frock is as elastic as its fabric. It appears on sporting fields, in active or passive mood, with the very greatest aplomb. It walks smartly down the avenue on important [illegible] or [illegible] conference implied in the purposeful stride of its wearer. It truly graces every sort of casual occasion.

* * *

IT IS [illegible] knit costumes become suitable for occasions of [illegible] knit frock [illegible] cape and the [illegible] event merrier than a morning at the office. Such a frock is right for spectator sports.

* * *

FOR THE person who actually plays and concerned about how she looks when she plays, another knit costume is suggested. [illegible] less knit jacket is worn over a long-sleeved silk blouse. Another knit [illegible] to be exceedingly [illegible] so practical is the one with a [illegible] over a tuck-in and [illegible] of gores or [illegible] couturiers have experimented with knit material this season and a frock from Chanel has a marked up and going aspect. It should look very right behind the wheel of a yellow roadster.

* * *

THE THREE-PIECE outfit pictured is hand knit, so that it is beautifully elastic, but will not sag or bulge, and the coloring is ravishing. Of the pale and deeper yellow of the daffodil, the sleeveless blouse is the right shade, the skirt, jacket and belt of the darker tone, the lower fronts of the coat achieving interest by a design in fascinating pastel shades of rose, chartreuse, and terra cotta blended with amazing chic and distinction.

* * *

HAT OF natural straw, with irregular brim trimmed in ribbon bands shaded orange, brown and yellow.

A smart outfit, with a nonchalant air, suitable for the country club, or any outdoor activity.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Is a young man supposed to spend most of his salary [illegible] the girl he is engaged to? My girl friend wants [illegible] [illegible] tentions, including going to night clubs. At this rate how can we ever marry?

STOCK MARKET IS TWO-SIDED IN WALL ST.

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, April 30 (AP)—The stock market was a two-sided affair again today, with high-priced specialties [illegible] and public utilities presenting several points of strength [illegible] renewed weakness [illegible] steels, coppers [illegible]

Prices [illegible] at the start [illegible] selling before [illegible] irregular recovery in the early afternoon only to encounter renewed selling.

Copper prices broke sharply on the London metal exchange, leading to rather widespread expectations of a further cut here probably to around 12 cents a pound.

U. S. Steel common was carried down more than 4 points before it met effective buying support, despite the fact that the quarterly earnings reported yesterday exceeded general expectations.

Southern Railway [illegible] points to a new low [illegible] and Norfolk & Western, St. Louis-San Francisco and a few others sagged 2 to 3 points. Lackawanna and Louisville & Nashville, however, moved upward against the general trend.

Practically all of the leading copper stocks sold at new low levels for the year.

Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Calumet & Arizona, Kennecott and Granby dropped 2 points or more, while losses of a point or so among the others were common.

CURB MARKET COVERING

New York, April 30 (AP)—A swift rally, centering in the utilities and oils, developed on the Curb market today, foreshadowed by the heavy covering movement in the last few minutes of trading yesterday.

The market displayed pronounced strength in the initial transactions, turned hesitant in the middle of the morning, when the big board was unsettled by heavy selling of coppers, but started upward again in the early afternoon.

In the oils, Vacuum rose about 3 points to a new high for the year. This company will be merged with Standard of New York, if the consolidation is upheld in the courts.

Gulf was another strong spot in the petroleum group, rising a few points in active trading. Houston new stock and Cities Service made moderate headway.

Natural Gas stocks were firm, Memphis and Allegheny reflecting rumors of a merger or close affiliation. United Gas issues moved up slightly.

American Superpower returned to the leadership of the utilities, with an upturn carrying it back into the neighborhood of its highest levels of the year. Such issues as Electric Bond and Share, American Gas and Electric and American and Foreign Power Warrants moved up 2 or 3 points.

In the industrials, Deere new stock was in good demand in the first hour, but encountered renewed selling on the advance. Columbia Pictures and American Hard Rubber were buoyant features, the former reaching new high ground for the year.

North American's Output Is Larger

Electric output of North American Co. subsidiaries for 12 months ended March 31 was about 6,810,000,000 k. w. h., an increase of 8½ per cent over previous 12 months.

BOSTON STOCK LEADERS HAVE GOOD RALLY

Leaders in Boston Stock Exchange trading today achieved a good rally. Boston Edison mounted over 3, while Stone & Webster enjoyed a like gain. General Alloys in fairly active trading sold at its best price for the year.

Atchison rallied 2. First National Stores advanced over 2 on issuance of a very favorable report by the president of the corporation.

International Telephone added over a point and New England Telephone was a point lower. Gillette soared 4 points, Nash added 1½ and Old Colony was up a like amount.

Losses of a point or more were shown by the following issues: Bigelow Sanford, Eastern Gas & Fuel, Island Creek, New Haven, Public Utility Holdings and Quincy Mining.

Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred, Railway Light & Security and Venezuela Mexican each had gains of a point or better.

Missouri Kansas Pipe Line Co. has completed negotiations for the opening of northern markets, according to an announcement made here today, and has placed a $15,000,000 order for 725 miles of major pipe line to serve this territory.

The National Tube Co. states this order is the largest single pipe line order ever placed. The contract calls for deliveries to start May 10, and when completed the line will have an ultimate daily capacity of 200,000,000 feet.

Announcement of this expansion was made this noon by J. H. Goddard & Co., investment bankers, at a luncheon given to representatives of over 100 New England financial institutions interested in Missouri Kansas Pipe Line. Edgar Stapper, vice-president of this company, was the principal speaker.

Telautograph Has Larger Earnings

Telautograph Corp. reports for quarter ended March 31 net of $85,200 after charges, against $75,940 in first quarter of 1929. March quarter net equals 37 cents a share on 228,760 no-par common shares, against 33 cents a share on 192,000 common shares in first quarter of 1929 after dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred stock then outstanding.

Madrid Plans End of Oil Monopoly

Madrid, April 30 (AP)—Financial circles heard today that the government, worried over the low exchange of the peseta, probably would suppress the oil monopoly, believing it to be one of the chief factors in depreciation of the peseta.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

KEEP IN THE BANK

H. H., Boston—I have saved $1500, which I want to invest. What is your opinion of American Can?

Ans.—American Can has good earnings back of it. The company, a leading producer of tin containers, has paid dividends in various amounts from 1923; current $4 dividend rate established February, 1930. Extras of $1 each were paid January 2 and December 2, 1929. Earnings in 1929 were $8.02 a share, compared with $6.86 in 1928 and $4.11 in 1927. However, the yield at recent levels was less than 4 per cent. You can get 4½ per cent from the savings bank. In fact, that is the best place for your fund. Don't commence to buy securities until you have $2000, or so. Write to us then.

YIELD LOW

A. B., Quincy—Please give information on Procter & Gamble and your opinion of a purchase of the stock.

Ans.—Procter & Gamble conducts a soap business established in 1837. Earnings and dividend report is good. The present company has paid dividends in various amounts since 1891. The annual rate on the new stock, a five-for-one-split, August, 1929, is $3 a share. On this basis earnings for fiscal year ended June 30, 1929, were $2.97 a share. For six months ended December 31, 1929, they were $1.75 a share. At recent levels the yield was about 3 per cent, which makes the stock a speculation on dividend prospects.

SELECTION APPROVED

Miss C. B., Brookline—I want to invest about $1200 and have selected General Electric special. Do you approve?

Ans.—General Electric special is a sound stock. It pays 60 cents a share annually, par value $10, and is callable on any dividend date at 90 days' notice at $11 a share and accrued dividends. The yield is now about 5 per cent. You could buy 15 shares for about $1100, from which the annual income would be $60. Of course, you should keep at least $1000 in the savings bank as a protection against emergencies.

Vigorous buying of oil stocks was renewed under leadership of Standard Oil of New Jersey and the buying was accompanied by reports the management intends special distribution to stockholders in some form or other.

NO DECISION IN RADIO BATTLE

Heavy trading in Radio continued with first one element winning advantage, only to be superseded by the other side, but the sponsors for the stock maintain their enthusiasm despite the severe test recently.

CONSOLIDATED GAS UP FRACTIONALLY

Apparently interests sponsoring the Eastern utility merger welcomed the setback yesterday in Consolidated Gas, for demand quickly developed and closed the stock higher on the day.

RADIO-KEITH UNDER PRESSURE

Bear crowd persistently hammered Radio-Keith and succeeded in forcing the stock down on theory the quarterly statement was out of the way. Buying was evident from the same interests who maintain complete confidence in continued betterment in earnings.

Leading Stocks

One of the leading financial publications has selected a list of 15 leading stocks, representing the most promising company in the different groups. This list includes General Motors, American Radiator and Standard Sanitary, Du Pont, American Smelting, Westinghouse Electric, International Harvester, General Foods, R. H. Macy, American Can, Standard Oil of New Jersey, U. S. Steel, Union Pacific, Goodyear Tire & Rubber, Reynolds Tobacco and American Telephone & Telegraph.

General Railway Signal

In contrast to the general dullness in the railroad equipment field, this company has developed its earning power by leaps and bounds. Net for the first quarter this year exceeded the results for the corresponding period a year ago by more than 62 per cent. Considering that 1929 earnings were 52 per cent greater than the previous year, this may be considered quite an achievement. Net per share in 1929 was equivalent to $8.25, with present indications that complete results for this year will surpass this by a substantial margin. Annual dividend return of $5 on the common stock lends particular attractiveness to the stock at current valuations.

Curtis Publishing

This issue, although rarely in the speculative limelight because of the small floating supply of its shares, is looked upon as one of the outstanding investment purchases in the present market. Income has grown consistently, with net per share equal to $8.46 in 1929, as compared with $7.24, and $6.10 per share in the two preceding years. Results for the first three months of the current year disclose earnings more than 13 per cent ahead of the like period of last year. The common stock is on a regular $6 annual basis, supplemented with cash and stock extras.

Electric Bond & Share

Boston Stock Exchange house is very bullish on Electric Bond & Share. It says:

"We wish to repeat our special message issued yesterday recommending the purchase of Bond & Share at the market as a Super-Power stock representing equity ownership on major Utilities operating here and abroad. Its future is as certain as the future of electricity. It pays 6 per cent in stock and as the stock has practically a constant upward trend it offers a satisfactory yield in addition to its long-pull speculative possibilities. We estimate a book value of securities held in portfolio to be in excess of the current market quotations, which places no premium on the future growth of subsidiary corporations recognized as among leading and best managed units in the fastest growing of American industry.

"It is in strong technical position due to recent accumulations and we expect the stock will be listed on the N. Y. Stock Exchange within the year. When listed we predict it will become as popular as General Electric, to finance whose expansion E. B. S. was originally formed. We would buy E. B. S. at market for investment or long-pull speculation and disregard subsequent minor fluctuations."

CONTRACTS FOR LARGE PLANTS ARE PLACED

By B. C. FORBES

New York, April 30—"The best handler of workmen in America," as Charles A. Stone once described George O. Muhlfeld, Stone & Webster partner, tells me that contracts for very important construction jobs, both industrial and utility, have been pouring in lately in unusual volume. At least some of President Hoover's promisers are handsomely performing.

B. C. Forbes

Stone & Webster hung out their shingle as electrical engineers 41 years ago, after graduating from the first electrical engineering class conducted by Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and were perhaps the first firm of their kind in America. Their pickings for some time were painfully lean. Their "force" originally consisted of one office boy who knew enough when a prospective customer was in talking with one of the partners to keep thumping a typewriter furiously to create an air of great busyness!

Last year the firm was capitalized at $100,000,000 and some of the shares offered to the public. The concern has built some of the very largest public utility projects in the world. Also the young electrical engineers had vision enough to foresee the potentialities of electric light and power and early began acquiring such properties. Both Charlie Stone and Edwin Webster long ago entered the millionaire class—and raised several partners with them.

"Whenever we fall behind with any huge construction project," Mr. Stone once told me, "I know it will be finished on time if George Muhlfeld is available to put on the job. Within a week he will have every last workman brimful of enthusiasm, ready to sweat from top to toe to hurry the job along. Although a college man, George went through the hardest kind of hard work himself before his extraordinary aptitude for inspiring other fellows won him advancement."

Mr. Muhlfeld mentioned several new contracts ranging from $10,000,000 up. Naturally, he feels that unemployment is certain to be greatly reduced from now on.

Such cheerful facts are welcome these days, when pessimism is rife, are they not?

I find that most leading financiers are still dubious about the immediate future of stock quotations. They have lately been selling rather than buying. But nearly all of them mean to rebuy later, because they feel that the market's main movement will be distinctly upwards before 1930 ends.

You and I may think of electric railways as checkmated by motor buses and motor cars. It may astonish you to learn that last year they spent $680 a minute on new equipment and maintenance.

President R. H. Ballard of Southern California Edison, now in New York en route to Europe, tells me that his company is going right ahead as if Wall Street had never had a stock panic. Earnings are o. k.

One of my associates furnishes this item:

The daughter of a poor widow, after working for the telephone company for eight years, was taken ill and was ordered to leave her post every two hours to take certain medicine. Her department manager—perhaps not familiar with the circumstances—fired her. After a long struggle, she found other employment, worked five weeks, became very ill, was taken to the hospital, where an operation revealed that she had cancer. When she returned home, very sick, some of her old telephone girl friends visited her and found her, of course, in dire need. The girls wanted to know why she had left her job. She explained that she had been dismissed.

One of the girls went to a high-up executive in the company, explained the facts, the department head was called on the carpet, the girl was reinstated and her salary paid from the day she was fired. She died shortly thereafter and the telephone company paid all the doctor and funeral expenses.

Not all corporations are soulless.

Frank O. Wetmore, chairman of the First National Bank, Chicago, when I made some reference to the activities of "big men" like himself, retorted:

"I want to tell you that, having been 40 years in the banking business, I am doing my best to get back to the little man stuff: that is, to flower gardens, trees, shrubs, etc., with a little golf thrown in now and then."

The longer I live the more convinced I become that any successful man of affairs who doesn't try to do likewise as he gets on in years isn't so very wise. Give the young fellows a chance!

EARNINGS FOR TRICO LARGE IN QUARTER

New York, April 30—Trico Products Corp. earned $573,674 in the initial 1930 quarter, according to John R. Oishei, president. This represented an increase of 31.8 per cent over the $435,963 earned in the last quarter of 1929, and equal to $1.53 a share on the 374,491 shares outstanding.

It compares with $1.29 a share earned on 337,500 shares outstanding in the final 1929 quarter. These earnings are equivalent to 60 per cent of the total annual dividend requirements on the company's listed stock.

President Oishei also said the 1930 first quarter profits were within 5 per cent of the earnings of $606,679 for the same period of 1929 when motor production was at its peak for all time and was therefore regarded as extremely satisfactory.

Trico manufactures vacuum type windshield wipers, also rear vision mirrors, products used by every builder of motor cars in the United States and also by many manufacturers of foreign cars.

SIDELIGHTS OF WALL ST.

Steel Price Situation Publicly Appreciated

HIGH-GRADE selling of Steel common disclosed here at the beginning of last week was based, as then pointed out, on nervousness over the general price situation affecting steel products. The Steel Corporation was declared to be considerably concerned over the methods of smaller competitors in underbidding for important business. It is now understood that the Steel Corporation management has decided to publicly recognize the repeated shading of prices and to lower its official quotations. A reduction of $2 average per ton is not at all improbable in the near future. All of the steel companies are engaging in stiff competition for new business, this policy being a reflection particularly of the smaller total business becoming available as the industry enters into its seasonal dull summer period. Selling of Steel common and other steel stocks, at least that selling which developed a fortnight or so ago, was in recognition of this fundamental situation more than the stock market's vulnerable position.

Southern Railway's Dividend Prospects

FIRST of the big rails to break through its panic low, Southern Railway seems to enjoy little or no support even from its former best friends. The Southern situation reflects the exceedingly disappointing first quarter earnings, but in great part it also is responding to nervousness concerning its dividend. The company probably could maintain the $8 basis temporarily by dipping into surplus, but this course is not possible because of the preferred stock provisions. A lower rate might also be voted by the directors, but again the preferred provisions prevent payment to common stock when the dividend is not earned. Recognition of this unique situation has been responsible for considerable important selling of Southern Railway, the directorate of which is fully cognizant of the state of affairs and may attempt a recapitalization.

General Foods Has Many Strong Friends

INTERESTS who have always been closely identified with General Foods express great bullishness on the stock. They assert that the full significance of recent large-scale shifting of stock in the company is not yet appreciated. It is claimed that General Foods, in comparison with other leading food units, is selling out of line even after its recent betterment in price. The company enjoys a stability of income because of its many varied products that is absent in many other large food companies.

Nothing but the internal technical situation appears to prevent U. S. Freight from participating more actively in the decline.

Oil Situation Will Encourage Mergers

GRADUAL betterment in conditions within the oil trade will probably encourage revival of previously attempted mergers and probably also encourage new consolidations. Reduction of the number of units operating in the industry will prove one of the most important contributing factors toward still further stabilization. Outcome of the Government's suit to prevent the Standard of New York-Vacuum merger will decide whether other Standard units, particularly the New Jersey and California companies, will seek to consolidate. Other oil mergers are also likely to be attempted, all of which probably will further increase public interest in the oils and create, if present expectations are fulfilled, a "real old-fashioned oil market."

At the Radio Dial

By THE RADIO EDITOR

FOUR FIDDLES of historic interest will be played by a quartet of musicians in tonight's Mobiloil program on the Red Network at 8:30. The string quartet will be an arrangement of Beethoven's Menuet in G. The fiddles are four perfectly matched Guadagninis, owned by a New York collecter and valued at $45,000.

GUADAGNINI is a name almost as famous in violin making as Amati, Stradivarius and Guarnerius. As in the case of Amati, it does not stand for a single individual, but for a series of masters belonging to the same family. The most famous of the 17 Guadagnini was Giovanni Battista whose long life extended from 1685 to 1770. Almost equally celebrated was his cousin, Lorenzo I., who was born in 1695. The family flourished until 1831. Giovanni Battista Guadagnini was active in Parma, Turin and Milan. Prices for his fiddles vary from $1000 to $10,000 or more, according to their condition.

FROM CLASSICS of Beethoven to ultra-modernities of Bela Bartok, Howard Barlow leads his Philco Symphony Orchestra through pleasant fields for a crowded hour, starting at 10 o'clock on Columbia stations. The only modern work is the first performance of Bartok's Dance No. 3. This composer was commissioned by the Hungarian government, or whatever that nation's race-title is at present, to make a permanent collection of folk music. The folk tunes to which these people have danced down through the centuries have been set in ultra-modern rhythm and orchestration. Other composers represented are Wagner, Chaminade, Ponchielli, Brahms, Charpentier, Massenet, Beethoven, Nevin and Tschaikowsky.

Howard Barlow

LONG BEFORE Bela Bartok undertook to document Hungarian folk tunes, one Franz Liszt undertook the task with an energy and enthusiasm which would be hard to equal today. His Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 will be played by the Chicago Little Symphony during tonight's Halsey Stuart program on the Red Network at 9 o'clock.

IF YOU FEEL sentimentally inclined tonight, let me recommend Stephen Foster's "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," to be sung by the Sylvania Foresters quartet on WBZA and the Blue Chain at 8:30.

THE LUCKY-STRIKE Dance Orchestra which has been giving a supplementary series of programs on Wednesday evenings at 9:30, is off the air tonight. The band, under B. A. Rolfe's direction, will be heard on WJZ Thursdays from 8 to 9, starting tomorrow. This is to permit a second broadcast at midnight for Far West stations. The Saturday night broadcasts will continue as heretofore on the Red network at 10.

Oh! Oh! . . . Andy has gone and done it now. He confided to the Kingfish that his two sweethearts have him worried. Kingfish promptly suggested a lawyer for him. The best lawyer in the world for that sort of thing. We heard one side of his telephone talk with the lawyer on Andy's behalf last night.

"Is Lawyer Fisher in his office? That's the prettiest stenographer in Harlem.

"Hello, Mr. Fisher . . . Well, I got one. . . .

"Double X, double O. . . .

"I said, double X, double O. . . .

"Oh, fair. . . Ten, maybe fifteen . . . possibly twenty-five. . . .

"Oh, you don't need to worry about that . . . He's got a taxicab.

"Two girls. . .

"Mr. Fisher wants to know, Andy, does you want your name spread all over the papers. . . .

"He say no, Mr. Fisher . . . Go ahead and keep his name out. . . .

"That's just a little job, Andy . . . Just three or four dollars . . . You better git about eight dollars to give the lawyer in advance. . . .

"I'll have him there in the morning, Mr. Fisher. . . ."

THE AIR was crowded with lively programs last night. Ray Perkins, Broadway player, injected a slight element of novelty into the new Crush Dry program. He figured as master-of-ceremonies-announcer and as occasional entertainer. Two of his own light compositions were heard—"Lady Luck" from "Show of Shows" and a rough-and-tumble topical song, "Take My Seat, Lady."

ONE OF THE BEST half-hours of the evening was that given over to the Happy Wonder Bakers. Their performance was swift-running and smooth. An excellent male trio and a lusty chorus supply a note of infectious enthusiasm to the whole program.

BY FAR the finest bit of work in the RKO hour was the orchestral performance of a parody on Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2. The melodic basis was supplied by a series of old songs ranging from "Alexander's Ragtime Band" to "Everybody's Doing It." The number was a remarkable piece of orchestral arrangement.

CAPONE'S TIPS MAKE FRIENDS

Havana, April 30 (AP)—The largess of "Scarface" Al Capone, Chicago gangster, is winning him friends in Havana, whatever his status in Florida where state officials are attempting to close his home under the nuisance law.

Arriving here secretly by airplane from Miami yesterday the gangster chief and seven of his henchmen took a corner suite on the third floor of an expensive hotel and made themselves at home.

Capone sent for a manicurist and the hotel barber to come to his room, and when they had finished he tossed each a five dollar bill. All meals were served there, waiters and bellboys reported having received tips of proportionate size. It was a great day for all of them when he arrived.

West Concord Man Dies of Injuries

Concord, April 30—Earl Johnson, 21, of 5 Maple ct., West Concord, died here early today as a result of injuries sustained Monday afternoon in an automobile accident.

The roadster Johnson was driving collided with a truck at Blodgett's Corner, near South Lincoln, turning over twice and throwing him out on his head. He fractured the base of his skull. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson of West Concord. He was employed in Weston as a chauffeur.

Subsidy for Early Marriage Favored

Philadelphia, April 30 (AP)—State subsidy of early marriage is favored by Judge William E. Lewis, who for four months has been hearing disputes between husbands and wives in which economic condition has been a large factor. "The average young man cannot afford to undertake the responsibilities of home life," he remarked. "Why not then assistance in marriage, which is one of the most serious things in life?"

A Ray of Tax Hope

Legislature Moves to Lift Wage-Earners' Burden

There are two classes of legislation which always stimulate cupidity and avarice. One is the tariff. The other is taxes.

Whenever and wherever any gifts, benefits or spoils are to be granted, you will find the buzzards gathered, whether it be at the Capitol in Washington or the State House in Boston.

Massachusetts presumably is now to see a tearing and rendering of the carcass. Because the new income tax bill runs the entire gamut, touches every vested interest, affects every person, corporation and organization that is expected to contribute to the expenses of State and local governments.

The State saw such a manifestation of avarice thirteen years ago, when the income tax law first was enacted.

Every interest of wealth and influence was then represented by its lobbyists, fixit men and maneuverists. With the result that there was passed a law which exempted WEALTH AND INFLUENCE FROM REASONABLE BURDENS and imposed a too-heavy burden upon the wage-earners, and upon other earners of small incomes from their trades, professions and small businesses.

Those folks were out in the toil and struggle of the day. They were at the necessary and difficult task of earning a living for themselves and their families. They had neither the time, nor the money, nor the disposition to employ special agents to cajole, induce or in other ways prevail upon amenable members of the Legislature in their behalf.

It is because this year of 1930 holds the promise of a repetition of that condition that the Boston Evening American presumes now to say a word of counsel for them.

The earners of small incomes have borne the injustice of that tax law for thirteen years. Now there a prospect of their receiving at last some measure of equality and relief. The bill which the Committee has reported reduces the rate of their tax and increases the exemptions to them, notably to those of families and dependents. The exemptions well could have been further increased.

While they are pursuing the drab routine of the day, un-resented by special pleaders and salaried lobbyists, the Legis-ure should not again disregard their needs or purposely sacri- them.

The other interests can and will be protected as usual. Any ttle which they may wage among themselves should not be mitted by the Legislature to prolong or delay or defeat the ment of justice so long withheld from the humble people of s State.

REDUCE THE RATE. INCREASE THE EXEMPTIONS. legislators will derive a great deal of satisfaction and gen-l commendation if they follow this plain path of duty.

Their action should be taken at this session. The need r revision is urgent, and there is no excuse for delaying ntil the 1931 session.

The Moron

He Has His Uses

Interesting information from Dr. H. H. Goddard, Ohio psychologist, who says that 45 per cent of the people of the United States are morons. As scientists are usually conservative in their statements, the news is most distressful.

> "This class," according to the learned doctor, "is abnormally open to crime and disease, and constitutes our gravest social problem. Nearly one-half of our population is incompetent, and it is the duty of the other half to take care of it."

Dr. Goddard, like many other savants, bases his statement on the army intelligence tests given during the war to 1,500,000 men. These tests, much discussed since, tended to show that half of us are between 8 and 12 years old MENTALLY, and that only 4½ per cent have really mature brains.

From the cold, scientific standpoint you might ask: "Why should the intelligent half of the population take care of the moron half? Why not let them die off, of crime and disease, and spend the millions that they cost us on something useful?"

A hard question to answer—scientifically. It might be more humane, and certainly more economical, to chloroform the morons at once and be done with them.

Such a remedy, however, would have its inconveniences. And the world would be a dismal place to live in if all its inhabitants were as intellectual as, let us say, Dr. Goddard.

There is much to be said for the moron. His chief value, perhaps, is that he contributes to the feeling of superiority of the normal man. He is a measuring rod by which the average person can gauge his own greatness. He unconsciously flatters the self-esteem of the more fortunate part of the population, and flattery is essential to happiness.

Millions for Roads

Massachusetts to Spend $20,000,000

Glad tidings from the State House!

Massachusetts, it is announced, will spend in excess of $20,000,000 this year on highways.

About 200 miles of road will be built by the State in cooperation with the cities and towns, sixty additional miles by the State itself and another sixty will be widened and reconstructed.

In proportion to her size and in view of her early history of roadway construction, her record for 1930 will stand well above the average.

She will require a small army of men for this work and will thus be giving relief when it is needed. She sets an example for private industry to emulate to the utmost of its ability.

Something New in Storms

Very Disconcerting

Of interest to Mr. Ripley—if he hasn't heard—is a new kind of storm reported by aviators over the Mediterranean.

It is described as an area 400 yards long and 100 wide of thick, dense rain.

The strange thing about it is that the rain, instead of coming down, goes UP.

Scientists say it is a second cousin to the waterspout. Its technical name is a "willy nilly."

Fliers who have been through it, however, call it something else.

Correct—you guessed it.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

Africa is characterized by no such primitive types of animals as either South America or Australia. It seems to have been cut off from the main centers of mammalian evolution by the Sahara for a long time. It received its first land-mammals in the Oligocene (V B) after the Marsupials and the first clumsy Eocene (V A) placentals had disappeared from Asia and Europe.

H. G. Wells

After this first irruption the way was again closed, to open again (probably on the eastern side of the Sahara, across to Asia and Arabia and Syria) only in the Pliocene (V D).

The second and larger irruption which then followed gave Africa the bulk of the existing types, since then there has been evolution in many details, but no great changes.

The door was then again closed, or at most left ajar, so that Africa thus became an Ark for a large sample of the Pliocene Old World mammals. Some like deer and bears had failed to find the door before it shut again, and there are none of them in Africa; but the rest throve and multiplied in the broad, equatorial stretches, while the drought and cold of the Ice Age dealt hardly with their congeners who had stayed in the north.

Just as stretches of sea act as barriers to purely terrestrial animals, so stretches of land bar the migrations of the inhabitants of the waters.

The upheaval which in Miocene time (V C) created the Isthmus of Panama and the land-bridge between the two Americas, put an impassable barrier between the marine animals of Atlantic and Pacific, at least between those which could not face the cold of southern seas.

As a result, no fewer than six hundred cases are known of pairs of fish-species from the coasts of Panama, one member of each pair from its Pacific, the other from its Atlantic shores, the two closely related, but different in some trivial but constant character.

Original identity explains the similarities; independent evolution for some twenty million years has produced the differences.

Another example, very similar in its watery way to the case of the Australian land-masses is provided by Lake Baikal, the great, isolated sheet of fresh water that lies in Southern Siberia.

Since it was formed, apparently in the Mesozoic Era (IV), certainly before the earlier part of the Genozoic (V), it has been without any close connection with any other large body of water, fresh or salt.

The huge lake, over four hundred miles long and in some places nearly five thousand feet deep, holds out the most varied opportunities to water-living animals; but most of the kind of animals which elsewhere take advantage of similar opportunities, were absent in it from the start.

As a result, other types, which elsewhere remain monotonous and feebly developed, have here blossomed out in extraordinary variety and fill the most important places in the economy of the lake.

This is so with certain kinds of fish, but pre-eminently so with a particular crustacean family, the Gammarids. To this belongs the familiar sand-hopper which swarms under moist sea-weed on our sandy beaches, together with a goodly number of other types, fresh-water as well as marine. Members of this group were in Baikal from its beginnings.

Finding there what was denied them in all other parts of the world, a large and friendly home where there was no competition from more developed crustacean types, such as crayfish and crabs, and shrimps and prawns, they have done their best to take the place of higher Crustacea.

They have launched out into the most varied occupations. There are deep-water Gammarids, blind but with long feelers to compensate for the loss of sight, living at 300 fathoms; there are Gammarids which swim all their life in the open water deep below the surface, and are transparent as any jelly-fish; there are large shore-living Gammarids, four inches long—sand-hoppers doing their best to be lobsters; and so on.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, April 30—Division st., running a half-dozen blocks or so eastward off the Bowery, is solidly ramparted on either side with huge show windows displaying fur-trimmed coats, tailor-made suits and afternoon and evening frocks of startling values.

• • •

From a feminine viewpoint it is one of the most interesting thoroughfares in the town. Quickly copied fashions from the Parisian style centers are frequently shown there within 48 hours after they are on view in ateliers on aristocratic Fifth and Madison aves.

• • •

On Division st., however, they are often one-third to one-half cheaper. The street in many ways resembles an arcade, for overhead is an elevated structure which completely shuts off sunshine, and all day the shops glow with a pure white electric dazzle.

• • •

Sales are made almost solely through window displays. Merchants rarely advertise, and many have no names out front. Shops are open all day Sunday, and chorus girls take boy friends buy-buy there. Most of the merchants on Division st. like to bargain.

• • •

While there are a few strictly one-price establishments, the larger number announce first price as a mere "feeler." From then on one is supposed to haggle until a satisfactory figure is reached. Thus shopping becomes something of an adventure.

• • •

Not all the customers are chorus girls. Division has its limousine trade. Nearby is Allen st. offering a similar array of garment shops—not quite so gaudy and a bit cheaper. It is the first stop of push cart merchants in their march uptown.

• • •

Shopping on the East Side is not only cheaper, but one often finds a more pronounced courtesy. The butcher, the baker and candlestick maker bid you come again after bowing you to the middle of the sidewalk. Competition is keener. So the Ghetto must battle for trade.

• • •

He is a gentleman of enormous bulk with a wistful thin voice and a mop of wild hair. His companion about town is a frail young lady of 90 pounds with the booming voice of a circus barker. She calls him "Whispers" and he calls her "Noisy"—and, O dear what cut-ups.

• • •

Coloring a meerschaum pipe 20 years ago was a favorite indoor sport. Young men kept indoors during long winter nights puffing fervidly at chamois-covered pipes to give them an autumnal leaf brown. One meerschaum expert seems to hold the field today. His shop is on Broome st.

• • •

At a recent literary tea 15 out of 19 writers declared the most difficult word for them to spell was "occasion."

• • •

Telegraph companies are finding it increasingly difficult to employ messenger boys. The tip for messengers is out of vogue. Only people in poorer neighborhoods to whom a telegram is an event give gratuities any more.

• • •

Personal nomination for the most infectious laugh in New York—that of Joseph A. Moore.

• • •

Three successful men, reputed to have spent their first night in New York on park benches, were interviewed recently. One spent his first night at the Waldorf, another at the University Club and the third with friends on West End ave.

• • •

From a book review: "Throughout the entire story the American girl is pursued by two Parisian bounders who escort her everywhere with much bowing and hand-kissing, but she always has to pay the checks. It is difficult to know what to call them."

If people wouldn't simply die laughing they might be called a pair of French heels.

Turning the clocks ahead for Daylight Saving brings the second installment of the Income Tax one hour nearer.

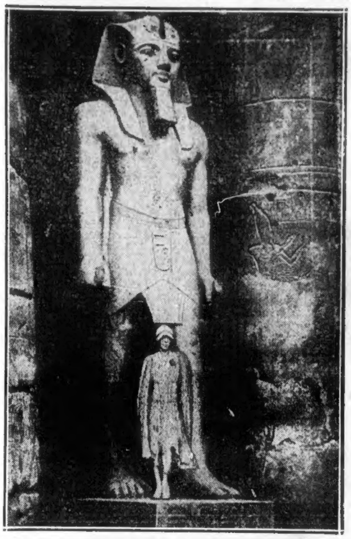
Nobody has thought to claim that all the daylight saved by American workers was due to Prohibition.

Now we know our old golf suit really was wool. Fifty million moths can't be wrong.

The first air mail robbery has occurred, and it's only a matter of time when we'll read: "Moon Rocket Held Up. Passengers Robbed of Cash and Jewels."

Old King, Modern Queen

We Haven't Improved Much



THE QUEEN OF THE BELGIANS AND OLD RAMESES II.

These pictures, recently taken in Egypt, are interesting to those that survey the world's history as a man in an airplane looks over a wide stretch of land.

It shows two royalties, far apart in time as we measure time. The statue is that of the powerful old Egyptian King Rameses II.

Below him in the flesh stands Her Majesty Elizabeth Queen of the Belgians, intelligently traveling about the world "for to admire and for to see."

The other picture shows the same energetic Queen Elizabeth being hauled up the side of one of the pyramids at Luxor in a basketchair.

She braces her feet against the wall as the Egyptians pull her up and examines inscriptions that were old and dim long before the State now called Belgium existed.

Before Rome began to appear on the Seven Hills, before Greece could read or write, those ancient hieroglyphic writings were cut into the stone.

What, if anything, does the Queen think of the Egyptian King at whose feet she stands?

And what would the old King think if he could look down and see the product of modern civilization, with its silk stockings, its filmy skirt, its little hat?

THE QUEEN TAKES A LOOK

What would he think, above all, of the fact that the people now rule their kings, whereas he and the kings in his line once ruled the teeming populations of the Nile Valley as completely as though they had actually been the gods that their slaves believed them to be?

Have we improved much as individuals or as kings and queens?

You see a terrible dignity in this statue of Rameses II.

Do you see as much in any modern ruler or ex-ruler; in the Belgian King, who, when it pleases him to put on workers' overalls, cannot be distinguished from any worker; in the Prince of Wales, democratic and smiling, or the former Kaiser, now growing old like an eagle in a cage?

Science goes forward, knowledge increases.

HUMAN BEINGS REMAIN ABOUT THE SAME.

Great progress in the outer world; not so much inside the human skull.

But it will come through the millions of years still ahead of us.
